Kills Brother-in-Law In Defense of Sister

alph Curren Claims He Fired at Grover C. Light Intending Only to Injure Him—Didn't Interfere Until Light Threatened to Shoot His Sister—Curren Held On Charge of Manslaughter.

rover C. Light, 41, of West Park dead as a result of a shooting at Light home Thursday evening be- en 6:30 and 7 o'clock. Ralph rran, 30, a brother-in-law of Light being held, pending an investiga- n by the authorities, on a techni- n charge of manslaughter. The ooting took place when Light ar- ed home in an intoxicated condi- n and began abusing his wife. r brother, who boarded at the me, claims he did not interfere til Light threatened to shoot Mrs. ght and he then took a hand in affair. He and Light both at- mpted to reach a shot-gun which ood in the house. Curren arrived st and taking the gun pointed it his brother-in-law and fired the n at Light's feet, intending to in- re him and defend himself. The ots however severed an artery and ght died from loss of blood.

The Light home is a short distance the hill from the West Park sta- n and Curren boarded there with s sister.

According to the story told Ser- ant James Cunningham and Sheriff ice who made an investigation, ght arrived home in an intoxicated ndition and began abusing his wife. is the contention of Curren that ght had previously threatened his fe and for some time his addiction drink had been the cause of uble. It is alleged that Light's mper when under the influence liquor was most violent.

Worked Himself Into Rage.

When he arrived home Thursday ening his wife was at work in the chen. Light began using abusive nguage and worked himself into a ge. He shouted that he was going kill his wife and made a dash to- rd a gun in the dining room. Ac- rding to Curren they both rushed ward the gun but Curren arrived re first and secured possession of gun. He stated that he intended strike his brother-in-law over the ad with the clubbed gun but was raid he would cause fatal injuries he pointed the gun at the intoxi- ted man and then pulled the trig- r.

Following the shooting Curren opped the gun and rushed outside. he charge of shot had struck Light the leg above the knee and bleed- g from the wound he followed after rren but when he reached the door dropped from the severe wound. ght was moved into the house and r. George W. Ross was summoned om his home in Port Ewen. Light as dead when the physician arrived nd he gave his opinion that death ad been caused by shock and loss of lood.

When the authorities arrived urren gave all information in regard o the shooting which was possible. He was brought back to the court ouse and again questioned and again epeated his story.

An autopsy was ordered performed oday and the body was taken in harge by Undertaker E. A. Kelly of his city.

Light Had Violent Temper

It is alleged that Light had a vio- ent temper and had once been in a Connecticutt penal institution from which he was paroled in the custody of Probation Officer Robert Service. Even when not under the influence of liquor Light displayed a quick temper and when drinking he was given to violent outbursts of temper. His two sons, Earl and Floyd, both young men, had threatened to leave home on account of their father's temper and his frequent threats of violence toward his family.

Sergeant Cunningham and Sheriff Rice were continuing their investiga- tion today. Troopers again visited the Light home and interviewed people in the vicinity, as well as mem- bers of the family, today. Curren is being held in jail pending the out- come of the investigation.

This is the second fatal shooting in this vicinity within the past week, in which members of a family were in- volved. Monday afternoon Lawrence Wilbur, 15 years old, of Willow shot and killed his younger brother and sister when he claims a gun which he didn't know was loaded was used to "scare" them.

Congressman and Four Others Die In Plane Crash

Representative Kaynor Was Starting on His First Airplane Trip—Pilot One of Most Experienced Army Aviators — Reached Height of About 400 Feet.

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP).—Five persons, including a member of Con- gress, his secretary, and three oth- ers, were hurtled to death today in the worst air crash in the history of Bolling Field.

Representative William Kaynor of Massachusetts, en route by air to his home in Springfield, along with Stanley B. Lowe, his secretary, were passengers in the plane.

Captain Harry A. Dinger, pilot of the plane, Arthur A. McGill, a civil- ian air employe, and Charles Kunz- ler, an army private, were others who lost their lives.

The big plane had just taken off from the field and had reached a height of about 400 feet when it seemed to hesitate and then turned downward, striking the ground with a tremendous crash.

Bolling Field officers immediately closed sources of information pend- ing an inquiry. News of the accident reached the Capitol first from a woman who made the trip by auto- mobile. She was in a hysterical state and could not immediately identify any of those who were killed.

Reports then spread like wildfire over the city, highly exaggerated in most instances, some of them placing the number of congressional victims as high as five. Representative Ketcham, of Michigan, was first list- ed with the dead, but his office quickly disposed of this erroneous report.

Lowe, who is also a resident of Springfield, and McGill, were re- quested by Representative Kaynor to accompany him on the flight to Mas- sachusetts. Kaynor only recently had been placed on the House Mili- tary Committee and today's tragedy ended his first journey in an air- plane.

Captain Dinger was considered one of the most expert aviators in the Army. He piloted Chairman James of the House Military Committee re- cently on a trip of 20,000 miles over the country for inspection purposes.

Representative Kaynor was serv- ing his first term in Congress, having been elected in November a year ago. He was born in Sanborn, Iowa, in 1884.

The death of Representative Kaynor marked the second of a mem- ber of Congress in an airplane acci- dent. A year or more ago Repre- sentative Thaddeus Sweet was in a fatal crash in New York state.

Weather Conditions Perfect

Weather conditions were perfect for flying, with hardly a cloud in the sky when the plane ascended. The cause of the accident, therefore, must be attributed to other than atmos- pheric conditions.

Captain Dinger was a resident of Mayport, Pa., while McGill, said to be a close friend of Kaynor, left his forwarding address, always taken at the field when civilians go into the air, as in care of Mrs. Sullivan Burgess, of Scarsdale, New York.

The crash occurred, some ground observers said, when Captain Dinger attempted to bank his plane with the wind. It seemed to come down as if such a maneuver were intended and then failed to rise.

The wrecked machine was a Fokker tri-motored plane known as the "C-5." These ships have unusual power.

All of those aboard were killed.

First arrivals at Bolling Field after the accident were met at the gates by sentries who had orders to allow no one to enter, but even these pre- cautions failed to prevent news of the accident from leaking out.

No Details Available.

The Assistant Secretary of War in charge of aviation, F. Trubee Davi- son, was one of the first to be in- formed but in the confusion which ensued even he had only incomplete information. Likewise word was transmitted to the White House, but with the exception of names of those killed, no details were available.

Mr. Davison went immediately to the field. He said the plane which he had used himself was turned over to Representative Kaynor for the trip. It was considered one of the best planes in the service. Captain Dinger was especially asked to take over the plane for the trip to Mas- sachusetts.

Representative Kaynor had six children, five boys and one girl. Lowe had three children. Friends said they had planned to surprise their families by arriving home by air for the holidays. Neither Mr. Kaynor nor Mrs. Lowe knew of the plans for the flight.

When the big ship fell it crum- pled into a heap a few feet from the spot where Lieut. George Cuddihy, the crack naval flier, met his death in an accident a few days ago. En- listed men who rushed to the wreck- age extricated the bodies without great difficulty.

Pope Pius XI Leaves Vatican and Enters Italian Territory

Ends Nearly 60 Years of Self-Imprisonment of the Popes in the Vatican—Celebrates Mass Com- memorating Fiftieth Anniversary of His Ordina- tion as a Priest.

Rome, Dec. 20 (AP).—Pope Pius XI, ending nearly 60 years of self- imprisonment of the Popes in the Vatican, made his exit at dawn today from the pontifical quarters and entered Italian territory.

It was the first time since 1870, when the kingdom of united Italy was formed and the Papal state de- stroyed, that a Pope had left the Vatican.

Notifying hardly anyone, the Pon- tiff drove at 6:45 a. m. in an auto- mobile from the Vatican to St. John Lateran, the palace or church where last February were signed the treaties solving the so-called Roman question. Even most of his entourage knew nothing of his departure.

He celebrated Mass there, com- memorating the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination as a priest. So un- assuming was the departure and so unforeseen that the public was un- aware that history had been made until issuance of a bulletin announc- ing the event by the Stefani news agency at several hours later.

St. John Lateran is the "mother church of Christendom," and is con- sidered the cathedral of Rome. It was therefore natural that the Pope, who is bishop of Rome, should go there. He was the first Pope to cele- brate Mass at St. John Lateran since Pius IX.

The Pontiff when he left the Vati- can was accompanied by Monsignor Caccia Dominione, chamberlain of his household, and a few other at- tendants. He had had the director of the Lombard Seminary notified, since he wished to be assisted at Mass by the students of the school.

Lombard seminarians served the then young Don Achille Ratti on December 21, 1879, when he said his first Mass at San Carlo Al Corso, and he wished their successors to be with him for the fiftieth anniversary of his priesthood.

Shortly after the Pontiff arrived at the palace the students of the Roman seminary received word of the momentous event and hastily came to the church, where they assisted him at Mass. The Pope said the reg- ular low Mass of the fourth Friday in Advent with commemoration of Saint Liberatus, the bishop whose feast is today.

The Pontiff wore the dark purple vestments suitable to the mourning season of Advent. Wednesdays and Fridays of which are observed as days of fasting and abstinence.

The altar at which the Pope offi- ciated was the one before which he was ordained 50 years ago.

Self-Exile Began in 1870.

The voluntary self-exile of the Popes in the Vatican began in 1870 when the troops of the first Victor Emmanuel took Rome in the name of the Kingdom of United Italy. Pope Pius IX, his temporal power ended, withdrew to the Vatican, never there- after to leave it.

His successors emulated his ex- ample, the relations with the House of Savoy continuing strained until recently when the present Pontiff, Pius XI, and the Italian Premier, Benito Mussolini, sought a solution of what had come to be called the "Roman Question".

This solution was reached with the signing in the Lateran Palace Febur- ary 11 of the so-called Lateran treaties, establishing the Vatican and certain surrounding territory as the Vatican State or Vatican City, in which the Pope would have practical- ly all the privileges and sovereignty of a temporal ruler. The Pope was recognized as Spiritual Father of Roman Catholics the world over and in Italy in particular, and in addition a large monetary indemnity was paid by the Italian government.

Pope Pius XI at 72 still is hale and hearty, blessed with the robust constitution he inherited from hardy progenitors and perfected by arduous mountain climbing when a young man.

On July 25, last, the Pope left the confines of the Vatican proper to come to St. Peter's Square bearing the Blessed Sacrament in Eucharistic procession. However, he still was within his own territory.

Except for the drive across Rome today he also was in his own terri- tory; in a sense, since the Lateran Palace and adjacent grounds have extra territoriality under the Lateran treaties—as have any buildings in Italy outside the Vatican wherever the Pope may happen to be.

The Mass said by the Pontiff was the same as said by thousands of humble parish priests scattered over the world today. Only one acolyte attended the Pontiff. The only cir- cumstance distinguishing the event was the singing of the choir of the Pontifical Roman Seminary and the chant of the Te Deum by the small body of clergy present.

California and Florida Escape Storm and Cold

(By The Associated Press.)

America was knee-deep in winter today, save only California and Florida, which were knee-deep in June.

Fog along the Atlantic coast, sleet-slashed communication lines in Ontario, sub-zero cold in the northwest, and snow robing entire tiers of middle western states—these represented the weather's vagaries. Even Dixie shivered and shook snow from her hair.

The worst blizzard middle Amer- ica has experienced since 1918 had forged snow shackles which bound transportation and chained the for- ward march of Christmas trade. Even more snow moved into the mid- dle west today, but nothing to com- pare with the midweek storm which the Chicago weather bureau alluded to as "almost one in a life time."

A complete list of deaths for which the storm, snow, cold and ice were to blame, was not possible, with many sections cut off from the world by drifts in highways and broken telephone and telegraph wires; but nearly two score had been reported, more than half of them in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Shifting winds lifted the fog which had cost a heavy price in New York harbor. Shipping had been almost at a stand still, and one vessel lay at the bottom out- side the harbor in 60 feet of water The money loss attributed to the fog reached into the millions.

The passenger ship Tourist was gripped in the Lake Erie ice, with her passengers safe ashore. This was the only lake shipping reported in trouble.

So far south did the cold extend that one death from exposure was reported in Louisiana, a state to which snow and killing cold are infrequent visitors.

Contrasting with the 18 below zero at Williston, N. D., last night was the plus 74 at Miami, which was only four degrees warmer than Los Angeles.

Eighty Injured In Subway Panic Under East River

When Train Runs Into Grounded Third Rail In The Tunnel Under East River—Gate Opened at Wel- fare Island.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Eighty persons, many of them women, were injured today when a six-car Brook- lyn-Manhattan transit subway train ran into a grounded third rail in the tunnel under the East river connect- ing Manhattan with Queens.

In their efforts to escape from the train some of the more excited pas- sengers broke windows in some of the cars, cutting themselves with glass.

Meanwhile the fumes of burning insulation seeped into the cars with the result that many passengers be- came excited and began to fight their way out. Windows were broken and many passengers were cut and bruised.

When the power was turned off the passengers rushed from the cars to the roadbed of the tunnel. Some walked to Queens Plaza station, about half a mile away. Many of them walked to an emergency exit and climbed out on Welfare Island, while others were taken aboard a train on the opposite track, and taken out of the tunnel.

B. M. T. officials said that the motorman brought his train to a stop and sent in a call for an emergency crew as soon as he noted the flare on the third rail.

In all forty passengers made their way through the smoke filled tunnel to the emergency gate leading to Welfare Island. This gate is pro- tected by a high sheet iron gate which is kept locked to prevent prisoners on the island from using the tunnel as a means of escape. The key to the gate is kept by the warden, but when news of the accident reached the island Deputy Warden Fred Fagan summoned several keepers and went to the emergency exit.

With crowbars and hammers they forced open the lock on the gate, de- scended into the tunnel and led the passengers up the steps of the exit to the island. The majority of the passengers were coughing and chok- ing from the smoke, but only one of them required medical attention.

Colonel Chandler Would Abolish Welfare League

His Report to Governor Says League Is Controlled by Desperate Crimi- nals — Recommends Appointment of 50 More Guards, End of Special Privileges and Relief From Over- crowding.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 20 (AP).—Colo- nel George F. Chandler's recommen- dation for the abolishment of the Mutual Welfare League at Auburn state prison was before Governor Roosevelt today, backed by the inves- tigator's assertion that the league was controlled by desperate criminals who created a reign of terror which kindled two riots at the institution.

The Welfare League was declared to be used as a bludgeon to gain privi- leges, to maltreat other prisoners and to bully the guards.

Colonel Chandler, who acted as Mr. Roosevelt's personal investigator of the bloody December 11 riot, also recommended the hiring of at least 50 more guards, immediate relief of overcrowding, segregation of incor- rigible prisoners, ending of special privileges, greater allowance for pris- oners' food, and employment of a suf- ficient civilian staff to handle lines of communication to the outside from the institution.

"Guards have not been backed up," Chandler said, "And it is surprising that a riot has not broken out sooner."

Almost coincident with the release of the report, it was announced that Governor Roosevelt planned a confer- ence today at the executive chambers with Senator Caleb Baumes, chair- man of the so-called Baumes Crime Commission, and Major John A. War- ner, superintendent of public works.

Though no announcement of the purpose of this conference was made, it was indicated in official circles that the conferees would go over Chand- ler's recommendations one by one to decide how to handle the Auburn sit- uation and prevent riots of the nature of those on July 29 and December 11.

Dealing with the Welfare League, the report said:

"Since the riot in July there has been a great feeling of unrest in the prison and some desperate characters have obtained control of the Welfare League and have held responsible positions in the league. This has given them freedom and they have gone about the yard, throughout the corridors and have used their league room at any and all times, even well into the night.

"In fact, we have a statement from a guard at the gate that night after night he has looked through the win- dow of this room at gambling going on with money on the table and drinks of what character he did not know but surmised.

"Prisoners have cat-called at the guards and have used vile and abusive language to them, defied their authority and when put in the cells by the guards have been let out through the league officials immedi- ately to laugh at the guards.

"League members have taken prisoners out of the line as they were marching and have ordered them into the League room and here the League members them- selves have, behind closed doors, beaten up prisoners so that they had to be taken to the hospital. In fact, a veritable reign of terror has obtained in this prison through the machinations of the criminals in con- trol of the League.

"Guards have not been backed up and it is surprising that a riot has not broken out sooner. Guards have constantly and repeatedly re- ported infractions, even to the extent of having found weapons in the cells and in the League rooms, but have received absolutely no results from their superiors.

"The League members have threatened guards and have been powerful enough to have been trans- ferred from their posts. It is incon- ceivable that such a condition could exist in a penal institution in the state of New York and is without doubt the cause of the riots."

The prison cells, seven feet high, seven feet deep and three and a half to four feet wide, were labelled "an- tiquated, damp, dark and cold" and declared to be "simply small files in which human beings are stored away."

The state's allowance for food for each prisoner was given as 21 cents a day. The prison arsenal was called "a thin sheet metal cabinet."

Because of the riot in July, during which several shops were destroyed by fire, Chandler said there is not enough employment for all of the 1,551 prisoners crowded into space, meant for 1,281. Men were sleeping in double decker cots in the corri- dors because there was no place else for them.

The prison keys were found kept in a cupboard in the guard room behind a thin wooden door, with the arsenal, these keys and tele- phone switchboards all in close proximity in the guard room.

Chandler recommended abolish- ment of the Civil Service examina- tion as a method of choosing guards, and suggested placing the selection in the hands of the Department of Correction. He would end the cus- tom of allowing prisoners to buy or receive outside food, special cooking, fine linens, silk shirts or other ma- terials not generally within the fi- nancial reach of the poorer prison- ers, "for this makes for dissatisfac- tion."

New Montgomery Ward Store Opens Tomorrow

Store at 267-269 Fair Street Located In New Steel Frame Fireproof Building Is Modern In Every Particular — Large Reserve Stocks Carried In City Warehouses.

The new Montgomery Ward Com- pany retail store at 267-269 Fair street will open for business tomor- row with a complete stock of mer- chandise. This store is located on the site of the former Ulster Garage property and has been built by Schuyler Schultz, who with Samuel Weisberg purchased the garage prop- erty and razed the old structure. The building was designed and erected according to the plans and specifica- tions of the mail order concern as one of their chain of retail stores. George E. Lowe, local architect, pre- pared the plans for the building, which is one of the first steel frame- work buildings to be erected in the business section.

Since the beginning of work on the building the contractors have rushed the work in order to have it com- pleted ready to turn over to Mont- gomery Ward Company in time to participate in the Christmas busi- ness.

For the past two weeks a force of men and girls has been engaged in receiving, unpacking and placing on shelves the stock of merchandise. In addition to the stock in the store a large reserve stock is maintained in warehouses in the city.

Everything is ready for the open- ing of the store Saturday and the public is invited to visit the store and look over the merchandise car- ried. Many people in this locality have for years been mail order cus- tomers of the firm and it is but re- cently that the concern has entered the retail chain store field, the ob- ject being to establish a series of stores throughout the country to which customers can actually go and see the merchandise before they buy. The same policy of catalogue selling is maintained with the same quality of merchandise and the same guar- antee of satisfaction.

Montgomery Ward Company be- gan the mail order sale of merchan- dise in 1869, when A. Montgomery Ward, who began his career as a shoemaker at Niles, Mich., opened a store in Chicago. From that small beginning the firm has grown until today there are vast warehouses in all parts of the country in addition to the chain of retail stores which is being added to constantly.

The store on Fair street is a two- story and basement structure with a mezzanine floor at the rear and a balcony over the front entrance where the offices are located. With its high ceiling, modern lighting ef- fect and attractive interior decorat- ing plan the store is one of the finest retail buildings in the city.

There is an elevator for service in the building and at the front a fireproof stairway. The entire build- ing is of fireproof construction and modern in every way. At the side of the building is a driveway to the rear for entrance to the automobile tire and accessory department which is one of the big departments of the store.

With the exception of H. A. Tweedie, who is manager of the lo- cal store, and Mr. Kelley, assistant manager, all of the employees will be local people. During the opening of the store there has been an extra force of men experienced in the stocking and opening of these retail stores assisting. A number of local men and women have been engaged as heads of departments in addition to a large force of clerks.

Old Fashioned Christmas at The White House

President and Mrs. Hoover Will En- tertain Youngsters of Official Fam- ilies—Community Tree In Sher- man Square.

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP).—The bustle and stir known to every Amer- ican home as Christmas comes 'round was seen in the White House today as President and Mrs. Hoover pre- pared for an old fashioned Yuletide season.

Christmas trees were ordered, one to be placed in the east room and another for the President's private apartment on the second floor.

To compensate for the failure of Herbert Hoover, Jr., to come with his young children to spend Christ- mas at the White House, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover have arranged for a party at which the youngsters of the men in their immediate official fam- ilies will participate. Secretary and Mrs. Davis will bring their children for a special Christmas party as will Assistant Secretary Davis of the War Department and the President's two private secretaries, George Akerson and Walter Neeton.

The tree to be set in the east room will have the scene of Christ's birth arranged underneath its branches. The tree upstairs will be of the good old fashioned type with much tinsel, electric lights and colorful bulbs.

On Christmas Eve the President and Mrs. Hooverwill participate in an open air party in Sherman Square, where a huge community tree will be lighted. Later there will be Christ- mas carol singing on the north lawn of the White House, where several hundred school children will sing "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "Silent Night," "Deck the Halls," and "Joy to the World."

At the ceremonies in Sherman Square a Christmas address will be made by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the Interior, and he then will call on President Hoover to touch a button which will bring on the hundreds of lights of the com- munity tree. At the same time senti- nels stationed at various points throughout the city will sound bugle calls which will signify that the Christmas tree has been lighted and that another Yuletide has been ushered in.

TERRITORIAL MANAGER HERE FOR STORE OPENING

J. E. DeMerritt, territorial manager of all of the eastern stores of Montgomery Ward and Company, will arrive in this city this evening from Chicago to be in attendance at the opening of the local store Saturday. H. A. Tweedie, local manager, was notified late Thursday that Mr. DeMerritt has arranged his business affairs in order that he might be in Kingston for the opening of the local store on Fair street. Mr. DeMerritt is well known in retail merchandising circles and is personally known by several local men.

The many recent mergers are a time saver: In 15 minutes a fellow can now be refused a loan by every bank in town.

What has become of the cut-up at the party who remarked, after applause of any kind, "I accept the nomination?"

A statute providing for the execution of all criminally insane persons who kill would simplify proceedings in many trials.

"Don't you enjoy these foreign lectures?" the young thing asked. "No," replied the Office Cynic, "I prefer the local anesthetics."

The Office Cynic has an idea for a new kind of marathon: The contestant sits on a flagpole and reads the Congressional Record.

Those who insist that home should be more than a parking place, seem to be losing sight of the fact that often it isn't even that.

Back in the old days in England they hanged men for lesser offenses than varnishing a corncob pipe before putting it on sale.

While the subject is before our eyes, will somebody please explain why the old-time engines had those enormous flare smoke stacks?

Sweet crackers, made in the shapes of the various states to aid children in geography, should go far toward popularizing Texas.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Offhand it would seem that beautiful college girls are not so dumb as chorus girls. In an intelligence test six Hunter College undergraduates beat six chorus girls, 84 to 50. But it developed that the chorus team consisted of college graduates. The 50 questions included such things as the critique of pure reason and the originator of many Shakespearean plots. Sundry self-constituted judges voted that the contest was a tie in charm.

Washington—Santa Claus is spending well over $100,000,000 for toys alone this year. The national toy bill was that in 1927, the last year for which production figures are available, and the consumption is much larger this year.

New York—One of the former glories of the small boy has been junked for a pittance. A horse-drawn fire engine, the city's last, brought $105 at auction. It cost $7,000.

New York—Found, a method of unboresome speechmaking at a banquet. Alfred E. Smith, Mayor Walker and others saw themselves talk at a dinner given by Joseph Johnson, commissioner of public works, to Winfield Sheehan, film executive. All the vocalization came from films.

Halifax, N. S.—Captain C. O. Allen, 69, who was Shanghaied at 18, experienced fires and storms in clipper ships, survived the blowing up of his munition-carrying vessel by a German submarine and spent a long time in a German prison camp, is dead. A switching engine in the Halifax railroad yard ran him down.

New York—Fred Stone is dancing again. After inactivity since an airplane accident more than a year ago his feet are active in a rehearsal for a new show in which the whole family will take part.

New York—In order to pick a husband right, girls, get a job. Philip Le Boutillier, merchant, told a Y. W. C. A. graduating class: "Women who are capable of earning their own living command more respect from their husbands. Women who are earning their own living have a better basis for judging men and choosing husbands than women without business experience."

Judge Leaves Fortune for Diplomacy School

Washington. — The bulk of the $2,000,000 fortune left by Judge Edwin B. Parker of the mixed claims commission will be dedicated to training young men to "render practical service of a high order to the United States government in its foreign relations." This was revealed when the will was offered for probate. The work will be done through a graduate school of international affairs, to be set up by a board of trustees in affiliation with any Washington university they may select.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

...t for many scores of moons has ...n so taken the world of style as ...t the present time. And the masculine lords of creation have meekly followed along with their women folk; so that much brown is seen in suits for men's wear on practically all occasions, except those where black is the only admissible garb. When ...e brown suits are matched in silk ...feather for hose and shoes—pat...n with hat and top coat, and a ...h of brightness given in the tie, ...t, more could the average man ...t?

...n the meantime, black velvet is ...ging ahead in feminine approval—...r material which never will go out ...style so long as water runs over ...river beds. Many of these curious ...le short evening wraps will be ...de of black velvet, perhaps heavily ...ded with fur. The black velvet, ... or crepe evening gown has an ...portant place this year and never ...es its dignity.

Little drops of crystal,
Little grains of glass
Are seen as pretty neckwear
Everywhere you pass.

...lore and more stanzas might be ...itten about little beads of wood, ...le leaves of golden metal or swing... pendants of many a shape and ...d. One thing is certain, beads are ...preciated, and it is a wonder that ... bride, so far as Dame Fashion ...ows, has been given a "bead ...ower."

Those who have attended grand ...ra this year in New York report ...e gowns to be more resplendent and ...e jewels more flashing than in any ...ar since the World war. Emeralds ...em to be special favorites. Yet how ...en it has been whispered that in ...ese days of danger many owners of ...uine jewels wear careful replicas ... their possessions. So why should ...t the rest of us indulge in a few ...een crystals?

...t might as well be admitted that ...ees are nearer the vanishing point ...an they have been for a number of ...ars. And no man nor woman can ...ophecy how long the changed con...ion will remain. One thing is cer...n, the length of skirts is a vital ...ic of conversation north, south, east ...d west.

The same powerful fashion wizard ...ich sent skirts down lower also said ...arker, darker" to hosiery, and wom... are obeying. This dark cry has ...n raised in several chill seasons, ... without gaining so much of a re...use as this year. Perhaps the dark ...e are accepted as a sort of corol... to the longer skirts, just as prop...tions in geometry have little "hitch...s" or big imposing bills in congress ...ve little "riders" that sometimes ...use more discussion than the orig...al bills.

Dame Fashion, being of a frugal ...ind, thought the other day she would ...y to find the mystic shade of dark ...ose which will look just right with ...lack pumps and also be the very ...hing to wear with tan oxfords. A ...sherman choosing artificial flies is ...ot ahead of the hosiery chooser in ...are necessary. One shade, wonderful ...ith tan leather, is out entirely when ...ut with black, and just the reverse ...ith other shades. But it can be done ...that is, Dame Fashion thinks it can. ...o name the shade is another matter. ...ach must hunt until she can say, "Eureka, I have found it!"—and then ...he will be satisfied.

Twenty Deaths In Chicago Area

Snowfall Within Tenth of Inch of All-time Record. Autos Stalled In Six-foot Snow Banks.

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—The Santa Clausan sleigh had a carpet of crinkly snow laid for it across the middle west and northwest today.

The snowfall here was 14.8 inches up to last midnight, lacking only one-tenth of an inch equalling the all-time record.

There was much suffering, much inconvenience and heavy money loss blamable on the blizzard—and there was a death list of 20 in the Chicago area alone. There was a brighter side, too, for the snow gave work to thousands of men who had faced the Christmas season with empty pockets.

By dint of work yesterday and last night, Chicago had made its main thoroughfares passable to motor and street car traffic, but there remained side streets in which automobiles were stalled in six-foot snow banks. Motorists were warned not to attempt travel outside the city.

Inter-city bus service remained almost stationary. Some buses that started out at the beginning of the blizzard were stranded in the snow, and in some cases the passengers had to wade miles through knee-high drifts to reach food and shelter.

School was impossible yesterday in Chicago, but was reopened today. Most pedestrian traffic up to last night was in the streets, where walkers wove their way among motor cars in preference to waddling through the sidewalk snows.

Chicago paid $60,000 to get its loop area comparatively clear of snow, and even so shoppers sloshed and slid about. Thousands of men who sought relief from the cold at police stations were given shovels and a chance to earn a few dollars. The county hospital reported 150 cases attributable to the cold.

Lake Michigan rolled less furiously early today as the wind dropped, but Chicago's drinking water continued a light brown color, as lake sand was forced into the intakes.

The zero wave that was promised to follow the blizzard did not materialize, although temperatures generally were lower. The weather bureau believed there would be more snow, although not to compare with Wednesday's and Thursday's fall.

A 40-below zero reading was recorded on the weather map in the Canadian northwest — at White River—but the readings in the United States at 7 p. m. yesterday for the most part were above zero. Dakota, Minnesota and Montana readings provided the only exceptions, and Williston, N. D., with minus 13 was the coldest.

Christmas seals are a good buy. They mean good-bye to tuberculosis.

Flying in England Shows Huge Increase

London, England.—Aviators may soon find it hard to get a place in the sun over Britain.

Following the lead of the prince of Wales, society has taken to the air. British flying clubs have more than 5,000 members, nearly 1,000 of whom have pilots' licenses.

The National Flying Services' club at Hanworth, with 534 members, claims to be the largest aviation society in the world. The London Airplane club at Stagg-lane airdrome is a close second with 520 members.

Airplane manufacturers report that the demand for planes exceeds the supply. One new three-seater sport model is being sold in advance of production, and demonstrations to potential buyers will last most of the winter.

Why Hole in Flower Pot

The hole in the bottom of a flower pot should never be closed up. A few cinders or bits of broken china should be placed over the hole. This lets the air into the roots and prevents the soil coming through.

Why Termed "Boers"

Boers is a Dutch word meaning farmer. The Dutch, German, and French settlers in South Africa were called "boers" because most of them were originally farmers.

First Soviet Ambassador

London, Dec. 20 (AP).—The Prince of Wales today received K. Sokolnikov, new Soviet ambassador to Great Britain, in the audience chamber of St. James Palace. The ambassador, who is the first of the communist Russian regime to Great Britain, presented the official credentials of his post.

The ambassador was accompanied to the palace by the chief members of the Soviet embassy staff. There had been an unusually long delay in the presentation of the credentials.

It was suggested that delay in presentation of the Soviet minister's credentials may have been due to disinclination of King George personally to receive a representative of the government which he holds responsible for the deaths of the former czar and the Russian imperial family, blood relatives.

M. K. Sokolnikov is the first Soviet ambassador to be accredited to Great Britain. He comes as a result of the labor government's recent renewal of relations with the Moscow government. Before the rupture of diplomatic relations with Russia in 1924 that country was represented in Great Britain by a charge d'affairs.

STATE RIGHTS LONG AGO.

A New England correspondent of the New York World quotes Alexis DeTocqueville on the "tyranny of the majority," on the "right to appeal from the sovereignty of the nation to the sovereignty of the human race," and features the following dictum of the French observer uttered nearly a hundred years ago: "I do not know any country where in general there reigns less independence of spirit and real liberty of discussion than in America." But perhaps the most interesting because the most astute and keenly observant passages in DeTocqueville's "Democracy in America" (written in 1835 after a personal study of conditions in this country) have reference to the early weakness of the now all-dominating Federal power.

Thus, in Vol. I, pp. 496-504, he says: "Patriotism is still directed to the state and has not passed over to the Union. Whenever the Federal government has anything to do with a state it begins to parley, to explain its motives and justify its conduct, to advise and, in short, anything but command. The state government prefers its claims with boldness, while the government of the Union reasons, temporizes, negotiates, (being) naturally so weak. Experience has shown that (in a conflict) the state has invariably succeeded . . . left to do as it thought fit. If the sovereignty of the Union were to engage in a struggle with that of the states, its defeat may be confidently predicted." The shrewd French observer added: "The North can not but desire the maintenance of the Union. The North, which ships products to all parts of the world and brings back the produce of the globe to the Union, is evidently interested in maintaining the Confederation, in order that the number of American producers and consumers may remain as large as possible."

PUT EVERYBODY IN JAIL.

According to Associated Press dispatches three "Reds" have been convicted at St. Clairsville, Ohio, for circulating literature that "branded the United States as militaristic and claimed that this country was planning for war." Apparently this was their only proved crime, one of which more than half the world has long been guilty and is so now especially. Judging from the accounts of increasing armaments, practically all nations, including the United States, are "planning" or preparing for possible war, and frequent dispatches note that many high-placed persons, including Senators and Representatives at Washington, deplore this tendency as "militaristic." If this was the extent of the offending of the three "Reds," they are in very good American company.

If they should go to jail for this, the late William J. Bryan should have gone to jail many times for his frequent attacks on the government's "militarism." The whole LaFollette party should have been locked up for adopting a party platform in 1924 containing the following: "We denounce the mercenary system of foreign policy under recent administrations in the interests of financial imperialists, oil monopolists and international bankers, which has at times degraded our State Department from its high service . . . to a trading outpost for those interests and concession-seekers engaged in the exploitation of weaker nations, as contrary to the will of the American people, destructive of domestic development and provocative of war." But all that's different, it will be said. For some reason, neither clear nor convincing, the growing tendency is not to measure the utterance of unpopular groups with the same yardstick tolerantly applied to the utterances of our "best people."

BROADSIDING PEACE EFFORT.

The Chicago Tribune, which none too modestly describes itself as the greatest newspaper in the world, has accepted Mr. Hoover's World Court declaration as a signal to open fire and has discharged a broadside seemingly intended to demolish that Court, the President and the "money power" all at once. In addition to its warlike editorials and cartoons, its Washington correspondent in part writes:

> It was notorious during the campaign that the international bankers viewed Mr. Hoover with suspicion. He was regarded as unsafe. There was no telling what he would do. He might end up by keeping the United States out of the World Court during his first term and out of the League of Nations during the second term, thereby wrecking the program of the international bankers. . . . But now he has urged us to prepare to accept the reservations of its reservations to American entry into the World Court which was devised by Mr. Root in collaboration with Sir Cecil Hurst of Great Britain and other leaders in the League of Nations. And the international bankers are now solid for Mr. Hoover.

It was shrewd to catch the ear of a large part of the public by including the "money power" in this broadside, but if the said part of the public would reflect a little, it would comprehend that if that power favors the World Court it is only because of the belief that peace, on the whole, is much better for business. For it is self-evident that the World Court as well as its admitted parent, the League of Nations, came into existence for a single purpose—the preservation of peace throughout civilization and, if possible, throughout the world.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY

WHEN YOU NEED THE PHYSICIAN

As a youngster in school you were likely taught some of the little truths or principles in physiology, such as the circulation of the blood, and the processes of digestion. You were told that physiology means how the body and its different organs work.

Now all there is to sickness, to ailments, to disease, or whatever else it is called, is that in some way something is interfering with these ordinary processes.

If you have a watch and it gets some dust in it, or it requires oiling, it will not keep good time. If you have a motor car, and have poor oil or gas, it will not give good service.

Accordingly you take your watch or car to the jeweler or mechanic and he locates the trouble. He can look inside the watch or car without any damage to them.

What about the doctor when the processes in your body are not going along just right? He can't open you up for any or every little thing. He can't see inside only to a limited extent.

What does he have to do?

Well, when a motor car stops the mechanic looks to two things. Is the fuel or gasoline getting to the engine, or is there something wrong with the electric system which prevents the explosion of the gasoline? If the car is "knocking" or giving trouble he looks for the causes.

Similarly, the physician as he takes your temperature, listens to your heart and lungs, tests your nerves and so forth, tries to find out just what is making your processes act too rapidly, too slowly, or irregularly.

He tries to determine just what has happened. Whether you are to blame yourself, whether you inherit any weakness or peculiarity that might cause the trouble, or whether some infection with its organisms has upset the processes in your body. He calls in the aid of the laboratory, X-ray, and all the other means of locating the trouble.

That is the reason that the regular physician spends such a long time on his course. He not only has to have a public and high school education, and a couple of years of university work, but must put in six or seven years on his medical studies alone because he has to study about physics, chemistry, bacteriology (organisms) as they affect the workings of the processes of the body, besides all the other departments—medicine, hygiene, pathology, materia-medica, anatomy, children's ailments, diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, skin ailments, medical and all the other branches in a complete medical education.

My thought is that when you are tempted to go to other than a regular physician that you will remember this.

Substance and Shadow

It was a saying of Demetrius Phalerus, that "Men having often abandoned what was visible for the sake of what was uncertain, have not got what they expected, and have lost what they had—being unfortunate by an enigmatical sort of calamity."—Athenaeus (circa A. D. 200). "The Deipnosophists."

Synopsis: Peggy Bacon tragically realizes Penny Wise was insane when Physician Curtiss tells that the hole of the estate for which she has endured misery and faced death and disgrace is ephemeral. A million dollars worth of securities Herbert Prescott had placed in a safe deposit box is missing and Chase corroborates Peggy's shocking belief that her uncle was mad. Yew Lodge closes tonight and Chase urges her to come to New York to end the search for the securities. The only clue is a slip of paper found in the key, on which was scrawled a Biblical quotation.

Chapter 13.

THE LUCKY BAG.

WITHIN a few minutes Peggy had regained her self-control and, thankful no one had been present to witness her breakdown, she dried her eyes, dabbed on more powder to cover the tear stains and sat back in her chair.

After all, she still had much to be thankful for, even if her uncle's large fortune had dwindled to Yew Lodge, its contents and its surrounding property. Philander Chase's comments on the furniture and paintings had indicated that the belongings within the house were of real and perhaps commercial value. No, instead of being upset, she had every reason to feel elated.

Peggy's spirits soared high as the inevitable reaction set in; she was of too buoyant and happy a temperament to remain long downcast. Why should she worry?

Never before had she owned anything more valuable than a diamond brooch and, as affairs stood, if Uncle Herbert was found to have been insane, such property as he had, would go to her father, and, if the will stood, then she would inherit, provided she carried out the stipulations therein.

She bent forward and consulted the calendar on the desk—but 13 days remained to the 17th of June. An unlucky number—perhaps! Peggy's determination to remain at Yew Lodge for that length of time grew adamantine; nothing should budge her; the detectives could come to her, and her exercise hereafter would be an hour's constitutional around the house, with Julia timing her.

She would leave no loophole for the courts to award Yew Lodge to Comm. Jamieson Sinclair—she was commencing to loathe the man, even his name was growing obnoxious.

With her arms resting on the desk, Peggy did some figuring: she had just enough ready cash to meet current expenses for the month, provided she included the $20 goldpiece she had found in the old Bible two nights before.

The goldpiece again brought to mind the Bible and its three underscored passages. No need to look at the pages again—she could recite them blindfolded:

"'Good news from a far country,'" she repeated, aloud. "'Fret not thyself because of evil doers.' 'When thou hast found it, then there shall be a reward, and thy expectation shall not be cut off.'"

The disjointed phrases, when run together into sentences, made sense. Peggy sat up. Was her too vivid imagination playing her false, was she attaching too much importance to this message "from a far country"?

And, strange as it seemed, the completed message, as she recited it, seemed most appropriate to her situation. Evil men, Edgar Stanton, for instance, had "fretted" her, to put it mildly; her "expectation" of a large inheritance had been summarily "cut off" by the news that her uncle's negotiable securities were missing.

But if those quotations applied to her did not the passage, "When thou hast found it, then there shall be a reward," hold an even deeper significance? Suppose it related to the missing securities? Suppose her uncle himself had removed the securities and brought them to Yew Lodge and secreted them in some secret hiding place?

Electrified by the thought, she sprang to her feet. If Herbert Prescott had gone daft on religion, what more likely than that he had used those passages to cloak the hiding place of his wealth?

She paused with her hand on the two Bibles; she had already gone over them again and again and had found no more black arrows on the margins of any page.

Perhaps if she could locate the missing pages from the big Bible, there might be some indication—some clue. She and Obadiah Evans had found the book in the basement in the padlocked room; why not, therefore, investigate that room more thoroughly?

The thought appealed and Peggy searched in one of the smaller drawers of the desk which she kept locked; she had placed the key there, carefully marked. Locating it with several others, she went to get her electric torch. But at the cellar stairs she hesitated: Julia had not returned and she was alone in the house. For a moment doubt assailed her, then, with a characteristic toss of her head, she ran down the stairs.

Placing her torch where the light would play directly on the door, she thrust the key into the padlock. It would not turn. Surprised, she tried inserting it upside down, but that did not work either.

Much perturbed she withdrew the key and examined the tag attached to it. "Bedroom door in basement," so read her writing. Had she been such a fool as to attach the tag to the wrong key? Swiftly she tried the other house keys; none fitted.

Baffled, Peggy looked more closely at the padlock, and its fresh condition caught her attention. The padlock, as she recalled it, had been rusty; even the locksmith had spoken of it. Then how came this new padlock on the door?

Peggy stood upright, thinking, thinking—yes, she had gone upstairs leaving Obadiah Evans to close and lock the bedroom door. He might have given her the wrong key before leaving.

She opened her hand and held the long thin steel key under her torch; the marks made by the file of the locksmith as he fitted it to the padlock were plain upon it. No, decidedly the key was the same—but the padlock; that had been changed. By whom? Obadiah Evans had had the opportunity, but what motive would have inspired him to thus bar her from the room?

Shaking a puzzled head, Peggy moved slowly about the cellar, using her flashlight on every object. Perhaps she might find the right key dropped by Obadiah; not realizing his loss, he might have given her one of his—farmers use padlocks far more frequently than city dwellers.

Under the windows toward the pond side stood several boxes; the upper one, a slat fruit box converted into a packing case, held books, and through the slats Peggy made out a larger volume lying under six or more paper-back novels. Suppose it was another Bible?

Spilling out the novels, she clutched the big volume and hastened back to the living room, first stopping to get a dustcloth out of the pantry. Layers of dust covered the book, and some of it, as she used her cloth with more vigor than discretion, got up her nose and in her eyes, half blinding her.

Discarding the cloth she propped the book on the desk and opened its pages—only to burst out laughing. Its highly glazed paper and half-tone illustrations of young men in uniform were far removed from the contents of ancient copies of the Holy Bible.

Peggy turned to the leather cover—its ornamental gold lettering supplied the title—The Lucky Bag. She had before her a copy of the class book issued yearly by the graduating class of midshipmen of the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Peggy had seen its counterpart, The Howitzer the West Pointers' class book, often, but never before had she examined a copy of The Lucky Bag, and she spared a moment to read a number of the biographical sketches under the photographs of the middies.

Toward the back the book opened naturally at a well-thumbled page and she looked into the eyes of a handsome young midshipman—top captain, to judge by the insignia on his uniform.

But Peggy had no eyes for anything but the face—younger by 15 years or more, the half-tone was an indisputable likeness of Jim—her Jim—Obadiah Evan's Jim.

Peggy looked at the name centered beneath the picture and her jaw dropped—Jamieson Sinclair.

Unable to believe her senses she continued to stare at the printed page of The Lucky Bag.

Miss Kate Walton Speaks to Girls

The Tri-Hi Club of the Y. W. C. A. held its monthly supper for girls of the high school club on Tuesday evening of this week. Miss Kate Walton of the High School Faculty, was the guest of honor and the speaker, and the girls were more than enthusiastic over her talk. Miss Walton began by giving the girls a short talk on good sportsmanship and playing square, particularly in connection with their work and play at school. She then spent about twenty minutes telling of her trip through Switzerland, and various amusing incidents that happened to her and to her companions in their efforts to speak the foreign languages. An announcement was made of the Tri-Hi Tea Dansant to be given by the club on New Year's afternoon, from four until seven o'clock and all girls were urged to make a special effort to be present.

Modern Food and Disease

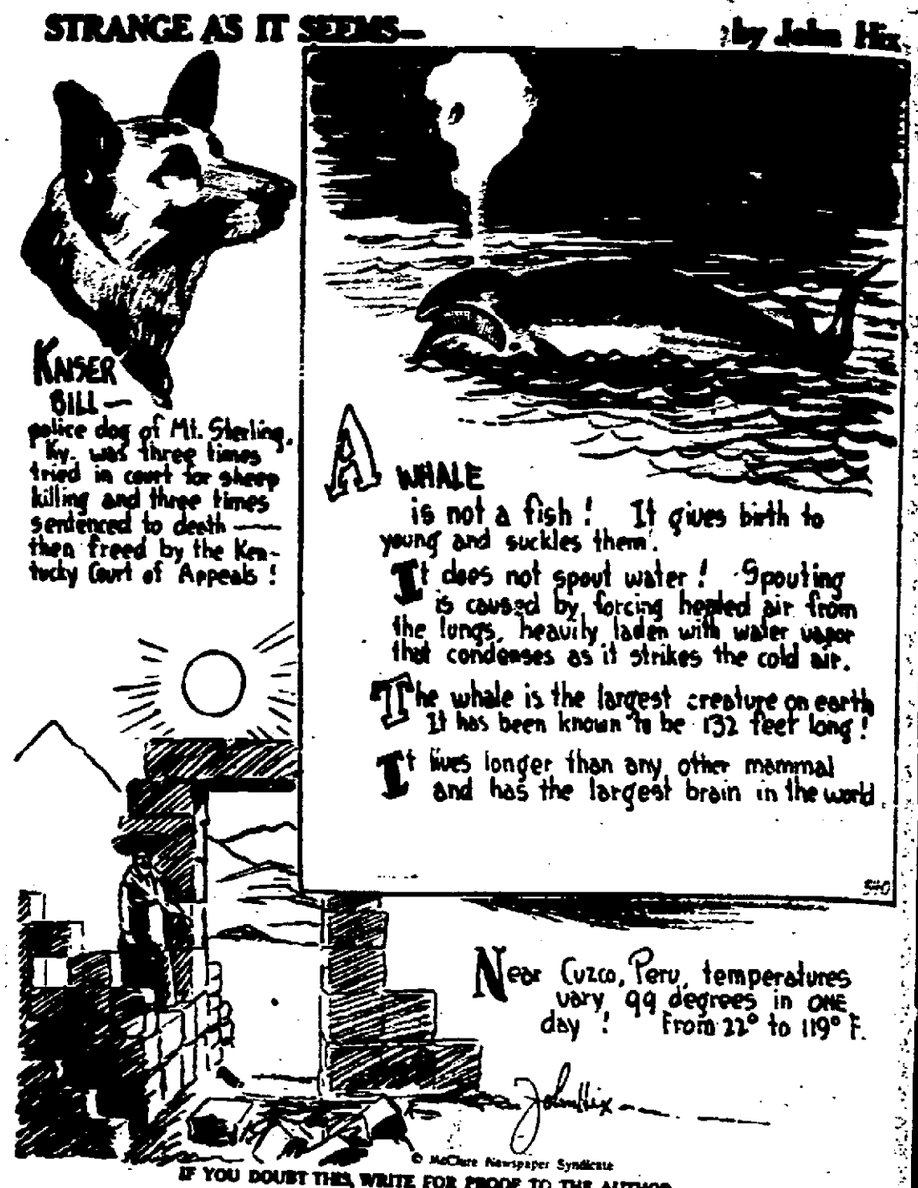

Colonel McCarrison, surgeon in the British army in India, was amazed at the health and longevity of the Sikhs. They live in a barren mountainous section of the land and necessarily have a very meager food supply. He lived with them over a period of four years and found among them none of the diseases of the civilized world. Then he began experimenting on animals with the refined foods of civilization and induced in them all its diseases.

Airplane Propulsion

An airplane would be useless without air in which to travel. In space the only kind of propulsion considered practical is the kick of an explosion, for the push then is against the gases formed by the explosion instead of the push against the air which is employed in airplanes.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—

IF YOU DOUBT THIS, WRITE FOR PROOF TO THE AUTHOR.

WHY

It Is Common to Say "Knocked Into Cocked Hat"

To knock into a cocked hat means to knock out of shape with a single blow, to alter beyond recognition, or to put an antagonist completely out of a contest, either physically or figuratively, says an article in the Path finder Magazine. It is generally supposed that the phrase originally referred to striking a thing such a blow that it would become limp and could be doubled up and carried flat under the arm like the old-fashioned cocked hats worn in the latter part of the Eighteenth century and the beginning of the Nineteenth. Such hats were three-cornered and had the brim permanently turned up.

The name arose from the fact that "to cock" means to turn, and to cock one's hat means to turn it up on one side or to set it on the head at a peculiar angle. The British military hat worn with the full dress uniform is still called a cocked hat, although it differs widely from the cocked hats formerly worn by British naval and military officers, as well as those once worn by church dignitaries.

Why Airing Grievences Has Some Good Points

There is wisdom in letting people talk out their grievances. There is no other way to get rid of them. That is the reason why democracy thrives through free speech. If people have a grievance, let them talk it out. If they have a grouch, let them express it. Repression makes inner ugliness to become a poison. If you are wise, you will never seek to keep a man from expressing his irritations at his fellow men. Moreover, if you are really wise, you will understand how to deal with people who have a grievance. Let them get it out and they will feel better. Then you will have an opportunity to deal with their hearts after their emotions have had opportunity to express themselves.—Montreal Family Herald.

Why the "p" in Thompson

Edward Thompson, professor of English and Hindustanee at the faculty at Oxford university, England, furnishes what he believes is the correct explanation of the letter "p" in Thompson. Being a corruption of Thomas' son, which is to say, Thomasson, it has been an English name for many centuries, he says. Old English script had a fashion of putting a long tail on the first letter of a double "s" occurring in a word. Many illiterate persons mistook the first "s" for a "p" and so the name became "Thomapson." Now that was somewhat unwieldy, and gradually the vowel sound in the middle was dropped. There you have "Thompson."—Kansas City Times.

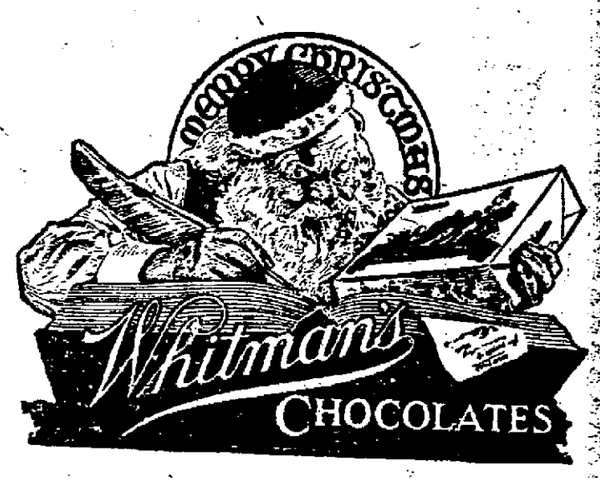

Why Venice's Many Canals

Venice is built upon islands which served as refuge for inhabitants of neighboring cities during attacks by barbarians. Its strategic advantage was so great that many fugitives remained and the lagoons which separated the islands were the natural streets. These islands were formed from the silt and debris brought down by rivers and the soil is an ooze mud that makes building difficult. Road beds would be extremely difficult to make, while canals are obviously easy to construct and maintain.

Quakers in America

Between 1650 and 1660 George Fox and a few prominent members of the Society of Friends had begun to urge the establishment of a colony in America to serve as a refuge for Quakers. William Penn became interested in the plan as early as 16.. However, his charters were not granted until 1680-82.

Novelist's Oversight

Harriet Beecher Stowe did not profit by the dramatization of her novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin." In her total disregard of the theater, she failed to reserve herself the dramatic rights of the book. Consequently, it was at the call of any producer who wished to have it. Throughout the play's immensely profitable life she never got a dollar in theatrical royalties.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES AT CLINTON AVENUE M. E. CHURCH.

Sunday evening, December 22, the Christmas cantata, "The Mystery of Bethlehem", by James H. Rogers, will be presented by the Clinton Avenue M. E. choir, assisted by Miss Josephine Moorted of Rangeries and Harry Clegrwater of this city. It will mark the initial rendition of this splendid cantata in Kingston. The cantata is composed of choruses, quartets, duets and many solos, there being two very beautiful soprano solos by Miss Moortell, and an alto solo, "O Little Town of Bethlehem", by Miss Hopper, very effectively written by Mr. Rogers. The final chorus by the choir, "Emmanuel", beginning with the words: "Alleluia, for the Lord God Omnipotent Reigneth", and then to the well known old hymn, "O Come All Ye Faithful" in a new setting makes a brilliant Amen to the work. The cantata is given under the direction of Rolland E. Hermance, choir director and soloist at the Clinton Avenue Church, with Mrs. Arthur Ellison at the organ. For the benefit of all listeners, each person entering the church will be given a program containing the words of the entire cantata. The evening service begins at 7:30.

On Sunday morning there will be special music, two carols by the Junior Choir, and anthem, and solo by Mr. Hermance, and Christmas sermon by the pastor. The special offering will go to the Methodist Episcopal Hospital.

Meeting of Federated P.-T. A.

Miss Peabody Talks on Group Study and Discussion—Says "Teachers Who Merely Teach Are Passe".

The Federated Council of Parent-Teachers' Associations held its December meeting on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance. No. 5, No. 6 and No. 9 P.-T. A.'s each had five delegates.

The president, Mrs. E. H. D. Boerker, is giving the council some facts about the history of the national organization at each meeting. Just one was given at this meeting—that the object of the Second National Congress of Mothers was to create a nation-wide movement for juvenile courts and to remove children from the prisons.

After a brief business session, Mrs. Boerker introduced Miss May Peabody of Albany, representing the State Department of Parental Education. Miss Peabody said she had come to demonstrate the beauty, simplicity and effectiveness of group study and discussion with the hope that the council might be induced to form a lay leadership training class, or discussion group. Among the purposes of these classes, which are being formed throughout the state, as given by Miss Peabody, are to increase in parents the awareness of their opportunities as parents, to enable them to meet a changing world in the intelligences and certainty, to induce parents to evaluate their experience, motives and aims in dealing in the children, to stimulate the habit of study and to furnish them with understanding and control of problems affecting themselves and their children.

The membership of these study groups is made up of adults interested in work for children, and either a group leader or one willing to assume leadership later. The discussion method is used, following a course of study outlined by the Department of Education, under direction of Dr. Andrews and Miss Peabody. To qualify as a member of such a group, a person should be open-minded, desiring to know what science contributes to bringing up children, to further real work of the P.-T. A. or other organization for child study, and have a high sense of cooperation in home, school and community life.

Miss Peabody spoke of the new methods of education. "Teachers who merely teach are passe. Teachers guide rather than teach now, as people learn best from their own experience," said Miss Peabody, who has herself had a number of years' experience as a high school teacher, grammar school principal and teacher in religious educational work.

A group study class will not interfere with the program of a P.-T. A. but will be the means that leavens the entire lump, in Miss Peabody's opinion. She contrasted a sample discussion upon satisfying parent-child relationship. In the brief time given to this discussion the following ideas were brought out: There should be confidence, sympathetic understanding, truthfulness, cooperation and loyalty and consistent comradeship between parents and children, and among all the members of the family.

It was voted to have a group study discussion class in connection with the Kingston Federated Council, starting with the January meeting. A strong appeal was made for Miss Peabody to be herself the leader of this class, but she was unable to promise this. If unable to come herself each month, she will see that a suitable leader is provided. P.-T. A. in nearby towns will be invited to join this class. Miss Peabody spoke to another group again in the evening.

Farmer's Plow Digs Up Cash in Oklahoma

Anadarko, Okla.—S. M. Powell, while plowing on his Indian lease, 11 miles northwest of here struck something hard with his plow. On investigation, he discovered he had cut the top off an old tin can, disclosing two glittering $10 gold pieces and 105 bright, shiny dollars, all dated 1894.

He immediately took the $125 to the Kiowa Indian agency at Anadarko and asked if the agency had any claim to the money. After being assured that it did not, he went to an Anadarko banker and asked if he would accept the money on deposit.

The banker said yes, and that he would be glad to accept a million more like it.

Kingston Post Meeting Tonight

The regular monthly meeting of Kingston Post will be held tonight in the American Legion Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street.

The welfare committee will outline the work for the disabled in Kingston or in hospitals which the Post has done or intends to do for Christmas. The entire cost of this Christmas cheer will be taken from the Post welfare fund which was made up from the receipts of last Poppy Day.

Full details will also be given out regarding the visit of Santa Claus to the American Legion building next Monday night, to which the children of all World War veterans are invited.

Considerable returns have not yet been made for Victory Ball ticket sales.

All the news about the next county meeting in Marlborough on January 7, the dinner in Albany at the Ten Eyck Hotel in honor of the members of the New York state legislature on January 28 and other Legion affairs will be discussed.

Members of the local Post are co-operating by paying their dues early in order to beat out Greene county. Greene is now leading Ulster by quite a margin, but Ulster will soon be in the lead it is said if the local Legionnaires get their shoulder to the membership wheel.

A feature of the meeting tonight will be the showing of a five-reel Paramount movie, entitled, "Behind the Front," with Wallace Beery and other big stars. This will be shown after the meeting. There will, of course, be no charge. Refreshments will be served by the ladies.

All World War veterans and their mothers and wives are cordially invited.

Lobby Committee Scores Arnold

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—The "lobbying" activities of J. A. Arnold, manager of the Southern Tariff Association, were described as "reprehensible in the highest degree" in a report to the Senate today by its Lobby Committee.

The report said that "no specific statute, penal in nature" had been violated by Arnold, but it recommended that the public be protected against such activities by "appropriate legislation."

Arnold is also manager of the American Taxpayers League and has cooperated with the National Council of State Legislators, which have joint offices in Washington. He has been questioned at length by the Lobby Committee, headed by Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, and was sharply criticized by Lobby Committee members in the course of his testimony.

The report asserted that the committee had inquired into the activities of the organizations Arnold represented and added that Arnold operated "ostensibly to influence congressional legislation but in fact for the purpose of making a living for himself and a small group associated with him."

"There is in truth no such thing as a Southern Tariff Association or for that matter American Taxpayers' League," the report said.

ATTEMPT TO SLAY "SQUEALER" BALKED

Both Killers Wounded by Prison Guards.

Folsom, Calif.—Intent on wreaking vengeance on a "squealer," Tony Brown and Walter Burke, leaders in the Thanksgiving day riot in 1927, made a desperate attempt recently to outwit prison guards and reach the cell of Albert M. Stewart, the object of their revenge. The two convicts, condemned to be hanged in January, were subdued after a terrific battle in which Burke's arm was broken and Brown's scalp was laid open.

In the fight, waged in the serving kitchen of the hospital, Brown held four prison officials at bay by hurling 20 table knives at them, while Burke wielded two long butcher knives used for cutting bread and carving meat for the patients.

Make Own Stiletto.

Moses Simpson, guard in charge of the hospital, suffered a slashed ear.

Brown and Burke were found to have fashioned stilettos from pieces of the springs from their cots, sharpening these to a needle point on the concrete floors of their cells and improvising a handle of yarn raveled from their socks.

With these weapons, Warden Court Smith learned from the prison "underground," they intended to stab Stewart, who turned state's evidence at their trial. His cell is situated just beyond the prison hospital.

The convicts staged their desperate dash as Brown was being returned to his cell from his morning bath and Burke was being taken to the bathroom. As they passed each other in the corridor, Burke yelled to Brown: "Let's go! Quick!"

In an instant they whipped out their improvised stilettos and set out at top speed for Stewart's cell. At the hospital, their way was blocked by Simpson and they flung themselves into the serving kitchen, gathering up all the knives in sight.

As Simpson, Walter Neil, turnkey, who was shot by Brown in the Thanksgiving day riot, and U. P. Richmond, assistant turnkey, closed in on the cornered convicts, a veritable rain of knives met them, flung blade first by Brown.

Parrying these with their heavy canes, the only weapon allowed them inside the prison, the guards held off their rush until Brown's ammunition was exhausted. Then, reinforced by A. M. Townsend, assistant turnkey, they made a run at the convicts.

Subdued by Guards.

Brown seized an ice pick and struck again and again at the guards, aiming for the eyes and heart, while Burke stood at his side, slashing and stabbing with two butcher knives.

Finally, Brown was maneuvered into a corner. About the same time, Burke's arm fell useless to his side, broken in the battle.

Subdued at last, the convicts were taken to the hospital, where Burke's arm was set and Brown's lacerated scalp dressed. Then they were taken back to their cells in condemned row, where they will be kept under special guard until their removal to death row. Brown is to be hanged on January 3 and Burke on January 10.

HUNT MAN WHERE JAMES BOYS HID

Seek Fugitive Accused of Killing Man and Wife in Kansas.

Independence, Kan.—Over the same hills and in the same wooded tracts and ravines that deputy marshals and posses searched for the James boys in years agone ten deputy sheriffs are searching for George Hostetter, alleged assassin of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Weddle.

Old-timers recalled the famous hunt for Jesse and Frank James and the Younger brothers following the hold up of a train in June out in comparison.

Hostetter, agile six-foot hunter and trapper with a reputation of smoothing rabbits on the run with a revolver, is feared as much as the James and the Younger brothers were feared in the old days.

Known as a Killer.

It is believed he would not hesitate to kill any one who tried to give him up to the authorities.

That fear was expressed even by Roy Hostetter, brother of George when deputy sheriffs, under Ben Nordberg, chief deputy, started the hunt after receiving word from the telephone operator at Levasy, Mo., that Hostetter was at the home of Elmer Hostetter, another brother. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hostetter were staying at Elmer's home through fear of George. They had heard some one trying to open a door and a window of the house and had telephoned the Levasy operator to notify the deputy sheriffs.

Clarence Tate, deputy sheriff, said the Hostetter brothers were highly excited and their wives were almost hysterical.

About fifty exploded revolver cartridges were found outside the house, under a window. Deputies said they were new, shiny shells and had not been on the ground long.

Elmer and Roy Hostetter said they never had seen the shells before and did not know how they came to be under the window.

Roy Hostetter said if deputy sheriffs did not remain in the vicinity of his home he would not stay at home.

"I'll go to Independence and stay in the jail before I'll stay out here at night," he said. "I'm the one George intends to kill."

Believe He Threatened Family.

The Hostetter brothers and their wives denied they had seen George. However, deputy sheriffs were inclined to believe George had returned to the home some time in the night and threatened the families.

Jack Clifford, Ralph Duncan, Ernest Young, and Harry Gallagher, deputies, said they had called at six homes in the locality early in the morning and found most of the families sitting up fully dressed through fear of George Hostetter.

The deputies were unable to find Miss Mary Hunter, forty-two-year-old sweetheart of George. Persons in the locality said she and her sister left their home shortly after they were questioned by deputy sheriffs in connection with the assassination of Mr. and Mrs. Weddle.

Hostetter is believed to have killed the Weddles because of their opposition to his proposed marriage to Miss Hunter, who owns a joint interest in a 185-acre farm with her sister.

Seek Millions in Gold

Juneau, Alaska.—Treasure, including $5,000,000 in gold and a stock of thirty-year-old Scotch whisky, has drawn a daring crew of salvagers and deep sea divers here, ready to battle with the ocean over the hulk of a sunken steamer, The Islander.

London Divorce Total Reaches 2,000 for Year

London.—More couples have been divorced in London this year than at any time since the war, a checkup revealed. More than 2,000 divorce petitions have been dealt with. Women have been the leaders in the rush for relief from matrimonial woes. It is estimated the number of divorces throughout England this year will total approximately 4,000.

Host of Americans to Hunt in French Fields

Paris.—Many Americans are going to hunt in the fields and woods of France this winter, if one can judge from the number of them who have been seeking for permits this autumn. Those who own large estates are arranging for big hunting-house parties. Eight hundred men and women are making applications daily.

SLAM BANG

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

When you hear the windows shake,
Hear the rattle of each pane,
When you hear the whole house make
Noises like a railroad train,
Do not think that there's a war,
Do not think some bandit gang
Is breaking down your own front door.
Don't you know? It's just Slam Bang.

When you hear an awful crash,
Upstairs, downstairs, front or back,
When you hear a dish go smash,
When you hear a chair go crack,
When each button, bell and wire
Starts to clatter and to clang,
Ka, there isn't any fire.
Don't you know? It's just Slam Bang.

Lots of times I read about
Earthquakes where the houses fall,
But I'm oftentimes in doubt
If there was a quake at all.
When you heard the windows shake,
When with noise the whole house rang,
When you felt the whole town quake,
Don't you know? 'Twas just Slam Bang!

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

SELF KEPT SLAVES

A PARIS paper recently carried a story of a slave case in the Courts of Fez, Morocco, which is very interesting.

A woman there sold to a woman friend for a hundred and four dollars a young female slave. The French authorities heard of the transaction, and, as slavery is illegal within the French zone in Africa, the buyer and seller were both in court.

The slave was ordered liberated. But this order was received with such cries of indignation on the part of the slave as to embarrass the court. She accused the court of cruelty, insisting that she did not want to be liberated. "You know perfectly well," she said, "that liberation would ruin me. I am comfortably lodged and fed; I am content with my mistress. Why should I wish to be freed?"

So insistent and so clamorous was her demand to remain a slave that the court was compelled to compromise, permitting her to continue to work for nothing for her mistress.

That reminds me of a story of some slum dwellers in the East End of London whose homes, not only unsafe, but for years unfit for human habitation, were condemned to be torn down and replaced with sanitary, modern dwellings. A philanthropic enterprise was involved, and the tenants were to be suitably housed during the time that their unspeakable living quarters were being transformed into decent homes.

And yet a great hue and cry went up from these people whom it was planned to raise to a better standard of living. They protested against the inconvenience of the change. They complained of "interference," even accused their would-be benefactors of abuse in ousting them from the places they were occupying. In one voice they insisted, "Let us alone. We do not want to move!"

To people of our standards, of course, it is almost inconceivable that a slave should not want to be freed, that slum dwellers should protest against an attempt to better their condition. And yet it is not only the benighted we find sticking to a rut because they have become comfortable in it and are too lazy to move out of it. To the thoughtful observer every day brings example among those of us who are supposed to be enlightened, of people who chain themselves to some kind of slavery because it is the easiest way, because freedom would involve a change that would be too much trouble.

It isn't only in Africa and the London slums that we find self-kept slaves.

Flu Announcement Stirs Debate On Disease Known To Antiquity

Dr. Isidore Falk of Chicago, who announced he had isolated the germ causing influenza, is shown at the right. His laboratory assistants are pictured at the left.

By The Associated Press
Staff Writer of The Associated Press

Chicago.—The World, with clergymen, laymen, medical authorities, forgetting the latest report of identification of the germ of influenza, announced at the University of Chicago. The germ long has been sought and there have been other hopeful reports previously.

Dr. Isidore S. Falk, 30-year-old professor of bacteriology at the University of Chicago, is standing on the report he made to a scientific society at the university: that he has definitely isolated the germ.

The next step, which should go far toward settling the discussion, is to use the germs to seek remedies for flu. The nature of the remedies will depend on what is learned of the manner in which the germ causes the diseases, particularly whether it is by secreting a poison.

Influenza is said by some students to be one of the oldest diseases known to man.

Hippocrates studied it and thought it came from the atmosphere.

Dr. J. J. Walsh declares that there is a great deal of evidence to show that it was the plague which swept the Greeks as they set out for Troy.

Noah Webster wrote a two volume work on influenza after a long study of its history. Webster, like Hippocrates, thought that it was produced by atmospheric conditions, particularly by "electrical influences" following volcanic eruptions, comets, earthquakes, "or other such phenomena."

The position of the planets, also, "might have some relation to it," Webster said.

Immanuel Kant, the great mathematician and philosopher, also made an intensive study of the disease. The name "influenza", which is taken from the Italian for "influence", was not formally bestowed upon the disease until 1782, and its choice indicates that the older theories of atmospheric and planetary "influence" were accepted to some extent at that time.

Webster records a long series of epidemics of influenza, extending from the year 1174 to his own day. At the end of the eighteenth century a world-wide epidemic is recorded which swept successively over Siberia, Russia, China, India, Finland, Germany, Denmark, Sweden, England, Scotland, the Netherlands, France, Italy and Spain.

The Great Plague of London in 1664-5 is said by some authorities to have been an epidemic of virulent influenza. During the epidemic nearly half of the 160,000 people who remained in the city during the time it was rampant died.

It was estimated that 500,000 persons in the United States and 10,000,000 the world over died during the wartime epidemic of influenza and other diseases which "flu weakness" brought on.

Dr. Falk spent a year in intensive work at the University of Chicago in his attempt to isolate the germ, assisted by a staff of 14.

Heavy Damage In New England

Large Sections Without Light or Communication—Repair Crews Restringing Miles of Wire in New York State.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—While communication systems were slowly being re-established in northern and western New York after one of the worst sleet storms in years, New England today continued in an icy grip that already has cost hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage.

Large sections of New England were without light or communication as poles and wires gave beneath the weight of ice from a 24-hour rain and sleet storm. Automobile accidents were numerous; railroads in some cases operated hours behind schedules; many schools and industrial plants were forced to shut down, and orchards suffered heavy damage.

In New York state from as far south as Poughkeepsie to the Canadian border, repair crews were at work restringing miles of wire and replacing at least 215 power poles. Many communities continued isolated.

The weather had its freak side with lightning and thunder showers at Oneonta, N. Y., Westfield, Mass., and Keene, N. H.

After 36 hours without light or power, Glens Falls, N. Y., was digging itself out of the debris caused by fallen trees and limbs. Virtually all the city's telephone lines were out of order and the only out of town communication was a single telephone line south. Light service was restored to the business section.

Saratoga Springs was rapidly returning to normal with light service restored and communication lines reestablished. Workmen continued the task of removing trees and limbs that littered the streets. The village of Attica in Wyoming county continued isolated, without lights, telephone or telegraph service.

Deer in Chicken Yard Is Lifted Over Fence

Stamford, Conn.—Two policemen, equipped with lassos, rescued a 250-pound deer that had bounded into a chicken run here and was unable to get away.

The run adjoins the chicken coops of Enrico D'Aprile, and is closed in by a 10-foot wire fence. The deer made the leap into the run successfully, but found itself too cramped to make the necessary take-off for an escape. So D'Aprile called police, and Policemen Hendricks and O'Neill, after a number of failures, succeeded in lassoing the frightened animal by the front and hind legs. A police truck then took it to a farm outside the city, where it will be treated for the bruises it gave itself against the wire fence and then turned loose.

Books are those odd, rectangular things which the boys in the college movie carry about with them but do not open.

COLDS HAVE THREE DISTINCT STAGES

Scientist Gives Best Method of Relief.

Washington.—Because colds are not unchanging, but have three distinct stages, treatment must be planned for each stage, Dr. Walter A. Wells, professor of otolaryngology at Georgetown university here, advises. Treatment by a physician will do much to relieve the discomfort and shorten the duration of a cold, but not every one can have medical treatment for all colds. Remedies to apply at home are described by Doctor Wells in his recently published book.

In the first and second stages treatment should be general, not local, so as not to irritate further the tender membranes of the nose. Doctor Wells describes the first stage as the one when there is stuffiness, chilliness and possible fever and general discomfort. In the second stage there is marked secreting of watery material. This changes to a mucous or muco-purulent discharge during the last stage.

Prevention Is Best Remedy.

Prevention is the best of all home remedies for a cold, Doctor Wells stated, but having once got a cold the wise thing is to remain indoors in a comfortable warm room, resting in bed a day or more, if possible. Cold baths, cold showers and strenuous exercise, valuable hardening methods in the intervals between colds, should be stopped while one has a cold.

"Nothing could be farther from the right than the injunction, 'feed a cold and starve a fever.'" Doctor Wells explained. "A cold is a fever, the inflammation being localized in the respiratory mucous membranes. Overloading the stomach is directly harmful, and meats, gravies, fried stuff and richly spiced food are especially to be avoided."

Plenty of fluids, including milk and fruit juices, are advisable. For the beginning stage of a cold free perspiration helps, and for this hot drinks may be taken.

Urges Alkaline Treatments.

During the acute, feverish stage of a cold the blood tends to be less alkaline than usual. To combat this, alkaline treatment, such as taking bicarbonate of soda in water, is advised. Gentle local treatment may be begun in the second stage. Steam inhalations of menthol or menthol and eucalyptus are healing and soothing. For the last stage of a cold alkaline antiseptic solutions used locally as a douche are in order.

The chlorine treatment of colds, Doctor Wells and his associates found, was frequently helpful in simple, uncomplicated cases when used in the first stage. When tonsils or sinuses were involved this treatment had little effect. Doctor Wells has found no scientific foundation for the now popular vaccine treatment of colds, and attributed the occasional good results from it to coincidence.

2,000 PIGEONS ARE LOST MYSTERIOUSLY IN CANADA

Start in Ninety-Seven-Mile Race, but Only Twenty-Four Return to Their Dovecotes.

Toronto.—Somewhere along the 97 miles of air line between St. Mary's and Toronto disaster must have happened to Toronto homing pigeons racing for their lofts. Of the 2,000 pigeons belonging to the Toronto Federation of Racing Pigeon Clubs released only 24 have returned. The total loss is estimated at $37,000.

The mystery—for such it is to the pigeon men—may never be solved. Somewhere in the sky along this route, for example, did the flock of pigeons meet a flock of great roaring man-made dragons of the air? Pigeon men are wondering whether the first pursuit squadron of the United States army airplanes returning from Toronto to exhibition to Selfridge field at Detroit crashed into their flock of pigeons.

"Some great fright must have come," reasoned Ben Wright, the president of the Federation of Racing Clubs. "If this happened, then the pigeons, mere bundle of nerves, might turn in the opposite direction and fly till they were exhausted, probably from 500 to 800 miles."

It now devolves that on the same day over 300 birds belonging to the Royal Hiawatha Racing Pigeon club were released from New Hamburg, 85 miles nearer Toronto. Of these only two birds have returned.

Something happened. The mystery has cast depression over Toronto pigeon men. Could it have been some elemental disturbance of rain, wind, or lightening such as brought the big trimotored man-made bird City of San Francisco hurtling into a death swath in the southern desert?

Just one inkling of disaster, a clew that in no way discloses what happened, was the second of two birds that returned to F. A. Murby, 200 De Grassi street. It was on Sunday afternoon that this second pigeon of the 40 he had entered in the race came limping home. There were blood specks around the tail, but without signs of shot. The bird died soon after.

Ask Congress to Admit Alien, Washington Kin

New York.—Special legislation will be sought from congress to pay a respectful little gesture to the memory of George Washington. The legislation also will benefit a gentleman now sojourning in Toronto. He is Leon Jules William Washington, a Belgian accountant, who seeks admission to this country to become a citizen and claims relationship to this nation's first President. He calls the great Washington his great-grand-uncle.

John J. Curry, former Republican candidate for congress, and Raymond L. Wise, former special assistant United States attorney, have interested themselves in the case.

Washington came here in August, 1928, with a six months' visitor's visa. He left to go to Toronto February 5, 1929, and waits there, still hoping to find some way of returning.

"There is no criticism of the government in this case," said Mr. Wise. "Under our immigration laws Leon Washington is not admissible except as a visitor.

"He wants to come here to live, but if he waited and took his turn under the Belgian quota I understand it would require about three years. The Belgian quota is very small."

A petition dealing with the facts in Washington's case will be presented to the immigration committee of the house soon. Mr. Curry also has sought the backing of the Daughters of the American Revolution for his petition. Mr. Curry and Mr. Wise are convinced of the legitimacy of the Belgian's claims. John William Washington, the Belgian's father, was an Englishman and married the daughter of a Belgian merchant, then located in New York, who fought in the Union army during the Civil war and then returned to Brussels.

EUROPE NOW LURES EVER MOVING GOLD

By WILLIAM R. KUHNS
Financial Editor.
(Associated Press Feature Service.)

New York (AP).—The men who weigh, count and pack gold in kegs and small boxes for shipment abroad face a winter of activity.

Declining interest rates in the United States have swung the tide of gold back toward Europe for the first time in a year and a half.

More than $65,000,000 in gold has been shipped from New York, chiefly to London and Paris, in the last two months.

The total amount of gold held in the central banks of the world is usually estimated at present around $16,000,000,000. The amount of gold used for ornamental purposes is estimated about the same figure.

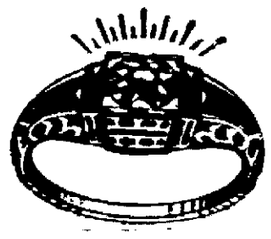

Fundamentally, of course, the ornamental gold confers on monetary gold whatever value it has. Gold is valuable because it glitters and is scarce.

Most of the $16,000,000,000 of ornamental gold is "out of circulation". The $10,000,000,000 of monetary gold constitutes the world's "floating supply". It shifts from country to country seeking its own level.

It migrates in general to localities where it can earn most and, other things being equal, tends to level off interest rates throughout the world.

Gold has almost vanished from circulation in domestic trade. Business between nations, however, still involves lugging the metal out of the federal reserve banks, assay offices and other depositories, conveying it to a pier and loading it on a ship.

The Mexican republic seems to have been founded upon the principles of "Life, liberty and the pursuit of plunder."

C. B. EVERETT, 157 SMITH AVENUE.

The soft, peaceful effect of the all blue lights used in lighting the trees at this house was evident as the judges approached this home, and the warm mellow glow further impressed them as they paused before it to make a fuller inspection. In every window was a small wreath lighted with a soft red lamp. To further bring out this softened effect, Mr. Everett had festooned the upper part of his porch with red, green and yellow lights which were covered over by Christmas greens, to keep them from being too bright. While admiring these decorations one paused and considered the Christmas Story, the journey of the three wise men, the scene in the lowly stable, shepherds and their flocks and felt that here was the Christmas story worked out in lights, so, considering the simpleness of design, the silent, peaceful, subdued effect produced, the judges were unanimous in granting this display first prize.

V. A. GORMAN, 184 ALBANY AVENUE.

The brightness and cheerfulness of this display entitled it to second prize in the estimation of the judges. Multicolored lights on well distributed trees and shrubs together with the lighted wreath in each window and the brilliant star at the roof peak, shone forth to the entire city and told their story of Christmas cheer. Here we have a different Christmas mood, where in our first prize winner we see the softer, more solemn effect, in this the second prize winner we get the joyous side of Christmas and as we stopped and viewed these myriads of sparkling lights each one of us received their message—"Let us Rejoice—'tis Christmas tide."

BONUSES WILL BULGE WALL STREET SOCKS.

New York (AP).—Christmas promises to be merrier than ever in Wall street.

The ill wind that swept away billions in paper profits also expanded brokers' sales and commissions.

Bonuses of unprecedented plumpness are in prospect. Each Christmas for several years the size and number of these good-will offerings from employer to employe have increased.

Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange have passed a billion shares and will reach approximately 1,200,000,000 before December 31 if the present rate is maintained.

On the basis of an average commission amounting to $17.50 for each 100 shares bought and each 100 shares sold, the commissions collected by houses that are members of the big exchange will be about $84,000,000.

Several items will vary this figure somewhat. There must be added, for instance, extra charges for odd lot transactions. On the other hand, transactions which brokers make for their own account involve much smaller commissions.

The sales volume and consequently the brokerage profits this year are running approximately 20 per cent ahead of last year. This ought to show an increase in commissions of $15,500,000 over 1928. The volume is almost double that of 1927.

The New York Stock Exchange exercises strict supervision over the payment of bonuses by member houses. Article 20 of the constitution says:

Last year the limit on bonuses established under this rule was 100 per cent, or a full year's salary.

It must be great to be rich enough to be sued for a $10,000 income tax.

After all, life isn't simply doing things. Thinking things helps also at times.

Palm Beach has decided to guard its "esthetic value," and that isn't such a bad idea.

Good nature will sometimes keep a person out of a whole lot of unnecessary trouble.

t Union St. Man Relates How The Nu-Erb Relieved Five Years of Suffering.

MR. KINGSBURG.

After the splendid results that I e had from a short treatment of French's Nu-Erb, I believe that yone should know about this derful medicine," said Mr. uel L. Kingsburg, 62-64 West ion St., Kingston, N. Y.

"For more than five years, I suf- ed from a disordered stomach d indigestion. My food ferment- and formed a distressing gas af- r every meal. My kidneys were a weakened condition, they call- me up many times each night d I suffered from backache all e time. My bowels would not ove without the aid of laxatives d my nerves were also in a weak- ed condition.

"Nu-Erb has relieved each one of these troubles and now, after a lit- le more than a month, I am feel- ing like my old self again. I am no longer bothered with indigestion. The pains have left my back and my kidneys do not disturb me at night. My nerves are steady and Nu-Erb has also put an end to the constipation. I will gladly recom- mend this medicine to anyone who suffers as I did."

Hundreds of men and women ev- erywhere are amazed at the won- derful powers of this great natural remedy. It makes short work of stomach, kidneys, liver and bowel trouble assisting them to function as nature intended. It drives rheu- matism out shortly, quicts the nerves and rebuilds a rundown sys- tem. The very first bottle usually shows splendid results.

McBride Drug Store, 312 Wall St., is headquarters in Kingston for Dr. French's Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his head- quarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remark- able medicine.

Y's Men's Club Hear of Bees

The Kingston Y's Men Club al- most had a hundred per cent meet- ing Tuesday evening at the "Y" as only a few members were absent. Team A in the attendance competi- tion lost first place to Team B by one point but Captain Ernest De- Fever with Lieutenant Stanley Wilcox of Team A said they would easily regain the lead next week. Captain James Scott with Lieuten- ant Earl Leeman of Team B chal- lenged them to do so.

Amid a great burst of enthusiasm William H. Nilo introduced as his guest and new member Otto Chris- tiansen. He was given a hearty wel- come into the membership.

President Morton McLaughlin in- troduced as his guest Mr. Deitz of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company and George Hutt introduc- ed his brother as his guest. Both were given the usual hearty Y's Men's welcome.

The large dining hall was beauti- fully decorated in keeping with the Christmas season and there was al- so a small Christmas tree hand- somely decorated with colored elec- tric lights.

The dinner was exceptionally fine as prepared by the Misses Deven- port and served by the Misses Lillian Cutlin, Dora Pratt and Florence Betz.

Dr. Julian I. Gifford had charge of the entertainment for the evening which proved to be of exceptionally high quality. He first introduced Seward Parks who went with the Kingston delegation to the Older Boys' Y. M. C. A. conference at Rochester and he gave a very fine report of this conference which was thoroughly enjoyed by the fellows.

Dr. Gifford then introduced Sid- ney K. Clapp who gave an extremely interesting address on "Bees" which proved to be not only highly enter- taining but very instructive. So in- tensely interested were the men in Mr. Clapp's address that when the time allotted him had expired and he wanted to stop all the men urged him to continue. After the meeting was over about ten or twelve Y's Men gathered around Mr. Clapp ask- ing him all manner of questions which he gladly answered. The evening went only too quickly and Mr. Clapp was given a very cordial invitation to speak to the club again at some later date.

Next week a big Christmas sur- prise program has been arranged by Dr. Julian I. Gifford, Clarence Dumm and N. LeVan Haver. It was even hinted that Santa Claus would be present with a very valu- able present for each member and guest. The members are urged to keep next week's meeting in mind as it will be quite out of the ordi- nary. The committee promise that the meeting will be short but ex- ceptionally interesting.

Last week a goodly delegation of Kingston Y's Men with their wives and friends visited the Cohoes Y's Men's Club at which time they had the pleasure of meeting a delegation of Glens Falls Y's Men. Those who journeyed to Cohoes were well re- paid and after a fine meeting dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by an orchestra furnished by the Cohoes club.

PAGEANT AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH SUNDAY EVENING.

On next Sunday evening at 7:30 Trinity M. E. Church, corner Watts and Hunter streets, will be the scene of the Christmas story portrayed by the pageant, "Oh, Worship the King", by Pearl Holloway.

In the first scene Gordon Watts, Frank Thompson, Jr., Edw. Hillis, David Canfield and G. Hicks bring the good news from the shepherds' viewpoint.

The Wise Men in the second scene are characterized by George E. Lowe, Lester Finley and Guy Allen, assist- ed by Marjory Davis and Esther Rus- sell.

In the third scene a modern club of young people awake to the real meaning of the "Spirit of Christ- mas". Characters are: Lester Fin- ley, Jr., Charles Leach, Ruth Club, Edith Dunbar, Agnes McKeown.

This pageant is given by the Sun- day school and is their annual "White Christmas", at which time donations will be received from each class. These donations go to the Five Points Missions, New York city, and should consist of non-perishable food, clothing and money, wrapped in white paper. They will be placed at the manger. Anyone in the congre- gation wishing to help in the dona- tions will be waited upon by the ushers. All donations will be appre- ciated.

Business Girls Club Meeting

In spite of the inclement weather the Business Girls Club of the Y. W. C. A. held a very enthusiastic supper meeting on Wednesday evening. Miss Howard announced that the next meeting will be held on January 8, and urged all the girls to keep this date in mind. A report was given of the money collected to buy candy, toys and gifts for the underprivileged children of the city and plans were made for the distribution of the boxes at Christmas time.

Any friends of the club are urged to send in their contributions this week in order that Santa Claus can make his visits before Christmas day.

Following the announcement Miss Howard called on the Osterhoudt, Ingalls and Creation troupe and a very entertaining half hour was spent in listening to a dramatic reading of the play, "Happiness Declared," a farce by Sam Hardy and George Kelly. Those who performed through the kindness of Miss Frances Osterhoudt, Miss Mary Ingalls and Mrs. William Creation, of the Twentieth Century Club, and was very much appreciated by the Business Girls.

By Jenkins

For dads, you'll find
The Yuletide list is fers
When kids grow up
And they can't buy 'em toys.

Christmas seals are a good buy. They mean good-bye to tuberculosis.

Something must be done to reform Christmas from the adult wrappers and return it to the children to whom it belongs.

Blessed are the homes where little stockings will hang this Christmas time, and may they all be filled to overflowing.

A merry Christmas to you, pard,
And may your day be pleasant.
To spend a quarter for a card
Is cheaper than a present!

This is the time of the year to get out the Christmas cards that were received last year and put the senders on the list for one this year.

Lounging robes are usually given to men who have no time to lounge.

"Christmas comes but once a year
And when it comes it brings good cheer."

"There's Santy, he's goinz—
Oh, look at the tree!
Quick—under the covers;
Don't let him see!

Old Santy has vanished,
And all that they hear
Is noise overhead of
His magical deer.

And when they awaken,
A mountain of toys
Shows Santy remembers
The good girls and boys.

He: "Where art thou going, sweet thing?"
She: "To the zoo."
He: "And what for?"
She: "My mother told me to buy some Christmas seals."

"It is better to give than to receive" is the thought of many who unwrap presents.

The universal gift—advice.

Never make fun of a friend's Christmas tie—it's a gift.

We wish all happiness to you,
And to those whom you hold dear
Not only in this Christmas-tide,
But all thruout the year.

CHRISTMAS COMPLICATIONS.

There was a time when Santa Claus
Was known to come by sleigh;
And tiny hoofs on housetops danced,
Eager to be away;
The children, wise in mystic lore,
Knew every reindeer's name,
And Christmas eve for centuries
Found Santa's steeds the same.

But times have changed since we were young,
And now the kids explain
That Santa drives a motor car,
Perhaps an aeroplane;
Still others think a Zeppelin
Has set aside his sleigh,
But all agree he surely comes
In some new-fangled way.

The Inevitable End.

Hush, Christmas necktie,
Don't you cry,
Pop's got to wear you
By and by.

The London Zoo has added a pair of aye-ayes to its collection. An aye-aye is described as a lemur, and said to be quite like a Hollywood yes-man.

When the entire fraternity chapter climbs into a small coupe it helps you to understand how a French army was rushed to the front in just a few taxicabs.

An explorer reports a Peruvian tribe in which women rule. That's another custom beside the custom of eating potatoes that we got from South America.

The hottest place in the world, says a geographical magazine, is Zizia in North Africa. There seems to be a field for an outdoor type of oven thermometer.

The water boys seem to have no luck. Gunga Din was shot, according to Kipling, and the new king of Afghanistan has been chased off the royal premises.

An old man of our acquaintance can distinctly remember when you could buy a pound of the best chocolates and bonbons for what is now asked for liver.

An odd thing took place at a recent party: It was found that a local lady who admits to being about twenty-eight years of age knew all the words of "Good Bye, My Bluebell."

Alphonso of Spain seems fortunate in the choice of a personal physician: The king's "beautiful health" is attributed to the fact that "he has never been one of regular habits."

A catsup manufacturer claims to have have designed a type of bottle from which catsup can readily be poured. Now for a liquid soap that won't petrify overnight in the feed line.

The further we go, the plainer it becomes that the "new morals" of the day are an amateurish imitation of morals our relatively recent ancestors discarded because they were dingy and not very pretty.

The modern movie organ is a constant marvel: Among its effects are trip hammers, bird calls, surf, falling crockery, rain, thunder, foxtrots, steam whistles and a fourteen-year-old boy munching hard candy.

$450,000 For Breach of Promise

Detroit, Dec. 20 (AP).—Unless a new trial is granted by Judge Homer Ferguson, a judgment against John H. Castle for $450,000 will be entered after 20 days in favor of Miss Bertha Cleavenger, in accordance with the jury's verdict yesterday in her $750,000 breach of promise suit.

The verdict against Castle, who is 47 years old and a wealthy real estate operator, is believed to have established a new high figure in a breach of promise case. Judge Ferguson expressed the opinion that the award doubles the largest previous one. He referred to the $225,000 verdict in the O'Brien-Manning case in New York, which was subsequently reduced by the court to $125,000.

Eight women and four men comprised the jury which made the award to the 43-year-old woman, who met Castle when she operated a rooming house and he was a worker in the Ford Motor Company factory. The six weeks of testimony in the trial revealed a long association, which began one fall day in 1917 when Castle, coming from Evansville, Ind., sought a room at the woman's house.

Miss Cleavenger said the two became engaged within six weeks and that she loaned Castle $1,800 which he used in climbing the ladder of success. He admitted receiving $1,000, which he said he repaid.

The defendant related that he gave Miss Cleavenger $40,000 to $50,000 between 1922 and 1925 while she was living at an expensive hotel, and gave her trips to Florida and California. She said it was only $11,000, and that he gave her money and trips because they were planning to be married and as evidence of his love. He said he gave her money because she harrassed him and the trips because he wanted to get rid of her.

After Castle married Miss Phyllis Linderman, daughter of a Detroit dentist, in 1925 Miss Cleavenger filed a suit, but withdrew it. Evidence in the trial was that he gave her from $500 to $1,800 a month and bought her an expensive automobile during the next two years.

Four Men in One Phone Booth Serenade Friend

Boston.—"That wasn't close harmony, that was four men singing in a telephone booth."

John Q. Fallon of Ayer was placed on probation in Municipal court here because with three companions he held an informal party in a telephone booth.

The idea, explained Fallon, was to serenade a friend in Fitchburg as a fitting climax to a pleasant evening. What better than a telephone to annihilate the 50 miles to Fitchburg?

The quartet was pried out of the booth after the door had been removed with a screwdriver. Fallon was arrested after the others had fled. Being in good voice, he insisted on finishing the closing bars of the serenade.

TAFFETA AGAIN BECOMES POPULAR FOR AFTERNOON FROCKS

New York.—That sturdy perennial, the taffeta frock, is again bidding for favor. It appears with great persistency in many collections and is already at our market after six at least. It may be printed or plain, with a dipping of the scales in favor of some printed affair somewhat provocative design as shown above, intended for the afternoon. Where once taffeta was reserved as solely in the realm of debutantes, it, like other fashions, has grown up. The taffeta evening frock has been with us for seasons, but the formal taffeta afternoon frock steps into the picture with considerable assurance, and with the usual tailored line and sometimes elaborate expert tailoring, and again the proof of the fashioned dressmaker's touch. While it is the unexpected which often happens, every one is confidently expecting the taffeta afternoon frock, which in the very nature of things is an unexpected type.

Interesting Frock with Soft Neckline and Frilled Sleeves.

(Copyright, 1929, by Fairchild)

That sleeves are about to change their ways is no secret. They seem for the moment content to have their fling below the elbow. The interesting exception to this general rule is in the dance frock, usually net or chiffon, which has grown little puff sleeves in sympathy with the trend toward Empire fashions. Many charming frocks have this feature, just as many frocks have aped Louise-boulanger by having a ribbon tied about the waist. That these ribbons are tied with front, back or side and not necessarily with streamer ends, is a point to remember—Also that they usually supply a note of contrast, seems to imply that they might be regarded as a gift suggestion.

Krupp Plant Operations Stringently Curtailed

Washington.—Unsatisfactory business conditions in Germany, assigned recently by American Trade Commissioner Miller to uncertainty over ratification of the Young plan, have resulted in stringent curtailment in the operations of the famous Krupp steel works, the commerce department has been advised.

One thousand workers have been dismissed and production slowed down by 1,000 tons per week at the Krupp plant, the department was informed. Other iron and steel works in the Ruhr district have curtailed production and in some instances have practically closed, it was said.

To Gas Ancient Church to Rid It of Worms

Linz.—The famous folding altar in the church of Refermarket, one of the best-known examples of German wood-craving art of the Middle ages, has become so badly worm eaten that it has been decided to gas the whole church with potassium cyanide. This will be the first time the method has ever been used in Austria, but it is well known in Germany.

Windows and doors are to be closely sealed and the church is then to be filled with the gas. A piece of badly worm-eaten wood is to be left in the church and brought out at intervals for examination by masked workmen. When all the worms have been killed, which may take as long as two weeks, the windows and doors will again be thrown open, but not for five days will the public be admitted.

50-MILE SNOW-LADEN GALE SWEEPS QUEBEC

Quebec, Dec. 20 (AP).—A 50-mile snow-laden gale today swept Quebec city and district, paralyzing traffic and bringing all shipping to a standstill. Ferry boat service between Quebec and Levis was curtailed and a fleet of ocean liners awaiting a favorable opportunity for a dash to sea was held in port.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Stylish Dress Model For Slender Figures.

6661. Panne velvet is pictured here with crepe for trimming. Printed velvet or printed crepe is also suggested. The Dress is made with a waist in hip length, gathered in upright rows at the sides, and finished with a yoke collar over the front ornamented with loops and ends of the crepe which form a smart tie. The sleeve is a fitted model long and pointed over the wrist. Three flounces form the skirt. These are mounted on a two piece foundation skirt.

The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. To make the dress for an 18 year size will require 4⅝ yards of 39 inch material. For yoke collar and tie of contrasting material ½ yard is required 39 inches wide, and cut crosswise. The width of the dress at lower edge of lower flounce, with fulness extended is 2¾ yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION carries your cake to a triumphant finish

BECAUSE of its double-action, Calumet Baking Powder is the best possible protection against the sad things that sometimes happen to cakes in the oven. For Calumet not only starts the leavening of your cake in the mixing bowl, but by a second action in the oven, it carries on that rising to a triumphant finish.

And biscuits, muffins, quick breads, too, have a delightful lightness—a fine texture—when baked with Calumet. Because of the splendid results Calumet's double-action brings, it has become the most popular baking powder in the world—far outselling every other brand.

Bake a cake with Calumet and you will see what a blessing this modern baking powder is. Use only one level teaspoon of Calumet to a cup of flour. This is the usual Calumet proportion and should be followed for best results—a real economy, too.

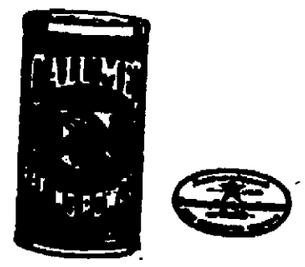

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. The test shows you how Calumet's double-action works. If you haven't seen it, you will want to try it today. You can now get Calumet at your grocer's.

MAKE THIS TEST

1 See for yourself how baking powder acts—and how Calumet acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in your mixing bowl.

2 After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in your oven. Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

Franklin Was Not Murdered

Mountain View, Ark., Dec. 19 (AP)—A jury's verdict has wiped away charges of murder against four mountaineer farmers, whose chief witness testified he was Franklin, the man they were accused of slaying.

The acquittal, after a trial which added $5,000 to Stone county's already heavy debt, offered an unexpected answer to the question of identity of the 23-year-old farm hand upon whom the defense based its case to free the most accursed of murderers.

S. M. Bone, presiding judge, who estimated the cost of the trial, stopped a burst of applause following the verdict. He asked the community to forget the bitter feelings which arose when the man appeared to challenge the story of Tillar Ruminer, 17, who said Franklin, her lover, had been kidnapped by nightriders and presumably slain.

The jury received the case late Wednesday night and its deliberations were continued until late yesterday at the insistence of Judge Bone, who said the county could hardly afford the expense of a retrial. The citizens will pay in taxes almost one dollar per capita for the trial, as the last census listed 8,877 inhabitants in the county.

A murder indictment against a fifth man, Alex Fulks, was dismissed. Those on trial, Bill Younger, Joe White, Herman Greenway, and Hubert Hester, were freed from jail, but the latter two were placed under $2,500 bond to answer charges of attacking the Ruminer girl.

Further grand jury investigation had been contemplated, but the grand jury was dismissed yesterday, precluding an inquiry until next spring. Defense counsel said they would seek to prosecute those who brought the case and declared "an old feud" was responsible for the charges.

Detroit's Island Park

Before the American Revolution Belle Isle, like Detroit, was a British possession. For some time after the Revolution its ownership was under dispute until the boundary between the United States and Canada was settled by treaty. Lieut. George McDougall took possession of it in 1762, afterward giving the Indians some rum, tobacco and other articles for a conveyance of the title. His family sold it to William Macomb in 1794 and Barnabas Campau purchased it in 1817 for $5,000. His heirs sold it to the city of Detroit in 1879 for $200,000.

An article says that chemists have found xylose in peanut shells. Very disheartening, we should think, if they were looking for peanuts.

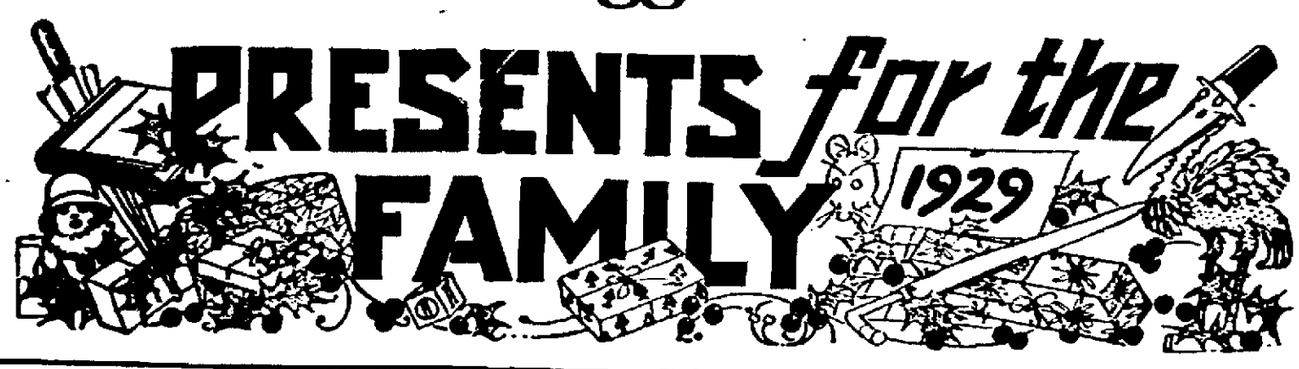

This will go down as a great year for the explorers. Byrd found thousands of miles of new country, and a vitamine was located in hash.

A concert tenor is reported to have a contract for ten weeks in sound films at $50,000 a week. This is important money even for an exaggeration.

Persistent Rumors Of Bus Disasters

Thursday afternoon and evening there was a persistent rumor about the streets to the effect that a bus had gone over the bank and into the river somewhere in the mountains. The name of the bus driver and the number of people aboard varied according to where the rumor was circulating.

Some had the accident between Kingston and Saugerties, although in that case there is far from the river. Others placed the accident between Catskill and Albany and there was still another rumor which located the accident up in the Mohawk valley. No word of any such an accident was recorded. It was also rumored that one of the big coast to coast busses was the one involved. Traveling was slippery by automobile and there were numerous minor accidents but so far as is known there were no serious accidents locally.

Berries Without Thorns Promised

Blackberries and Dewberries Being Tested by Many Scientists.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Blackberries and dewberries without thorns has been a subject of interest to plant breeders for a number of years. Doubtless those who have picked either of these fruits are in sympathy with the efforts of the scientists to eliminate the thorns, and it now looks as if it were to be done, according to George M. Darrow of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Two thornless varieties—the Cory blackberry and the Austin thornless dewberry—placed on the market in recent years have met with fairly good success. These thornless types are adapted to certain southern localities only.

Recent Developments.

One of the most recent developments in the production of thornless fruits is the work of E. L. Pollard, a fruit grower of California. In the summer of 1928 he observed thornless sports of the Young dewberry on his place. He tested six of these this year and all but one proved to be worthless. The one exception proved to be apparently as good in every way as the original Young, and all propagations of this sort were thornless.

"The success of this grower in finding a productive thornless sport of the Young dewberry," says Mr. Darrow, "calls attention to the desirability of finding similar sports of the standard blackberries of each section. All thornless sports should be propagated and tested for their productiveness.

Many Advantages.

"Thornlessness in the dewberry is advantageous not only in lowering the cost of training, but what is more important, also in reducing thorn injury to the canes themselves. Even greater advantages might be obtained with thornless Oregon Evergreen and Himalaya blackberries."

Investigations looking to the development of thornless blackberries and dewberries are now being conducted by the department and by a number of workers at state experiment stations.

Tonnage of Hay Stack Is Easily Estimated

To estimate the volume or number of cubic feet of hay in a stack, find the length and width of the stack and measure the distance over the stack from the ground on one side to the ground on the other side. This last measurement is found by throwing a rope over the stack. These three measurements are multiplied together, and from one-quarter to one-third of this product will give the number of cubic feet in the stack. If the stack slants toward the top from close to the bottom of the stack, one-fourth of the product is taken; if the stack goes up straight for about half its height and then slopes toward the top, one-third of the product is taken.

The most difficult problem is to estimate the number of cubic feet of hay required to equal one ton. One rule states that when hay has stood less than one month it requires 530 cubic feet of hay to make a ton, when it has stood one month 512 cubic feet, five or six months, 422 cubic feet, and when it has stood one year, 343 cubic feet.

Gatherers of Nitrogen Are in Legume Family

Nitrogen gatherers belong to the legume or clover family, most of which take their nitrogen from the air and do not reduce the content of soil nitrogen. These crops, when plowed down as green manures, add directly to the crop producing power of the soil. In order that the plant may obtain its nitrogen from the air the soil must originally contain or must be inoculated with a special type of bacteria, the presence of which is noted by the growth of nodules upon the roots through which the nitrogen is obtained.

Agricultural Notes

Most fungous or bacterial parasites thrive best where moisture is plentiful.

Calves fed at shorter intervals are also less subject to digestive disorders.

Not all plants need a "sweet" soil; some do better at a fairly high degree of acidity. It pays to know your plants.

When they get to using rustless iron and steel in agricultural implements the sky-roofed machine shed will not take its toll so rapidly.

Weed patches in grain fields should not be treated with sodium chlorate until after harvest when they need not be disturbed further with farm machinery.

The first and most important step in gathering the materials for use in manure-heated hotbeds is the manure. The best is fresh horse manure. Pile in rows four feet wide, not over six feet high and as long as is needed for the beds to be filled.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all our relatives and friends for their kindness during the sickness and death of our wife and mother, and also for the beautiful floral tributes and spiritual bouquets.

Kettles Didn't Boil in Rain

The rain of the past three days has seriously interfered with the receipts of the Salvation Army kettles. People have not been able to get out in the business sections, where the kettles are positioned, and the result has been that the fund is running way below what it should be and what it was at this time last year.

On Thursday at noon Ensign Van Syckle conferred with D. N. Mathews, president of the State of New York Bank, and treasurer of the fund. They went over the budget, looked over the requests for aid and counted up the contributions received at that time, either by check, or through the kettles. They found the fund was $600 short.

This means that this amount must be received if the program that has been decided upon—providing Christmas dinners to poor families and toys and candies and stockings and undergarments for the children—is carried out. Mr. Mathews and Ensign Van Syckle were in no wise discouraged when they realized the amount that was needed. They expressed themselves as being satisfied that the weather alone was responsible and were confident that when the people of the city and county realized the need for this amount, the money would be forthcoming.

The kettles will be out every day from now till Christmas and people are asked to patronize them generously. They are asked, also, if they prefer to help in another way, to send their checks for large or small sums, direct to Mr. Mathews at the State of New York Bank.

There are but a few days left and the suggestion is made that those intending to help do so without delay.

Old Den of Pirates

It was from the kasbah, the old of the days, that the Moorish pirates looked down to spy out the merchant ships that sailed the sea. And to this tiny harbor they put out to take their prey. It was in this harbor that the American ships finally put an end to the piratical supremacy of the Barbary terranean.

ucified on a Train as a Publicity Stunt erlin.—Crucified, a variety actor recently was found in a railway compartment in Berlin. He had hit upon a trick to attract the attention of the public. He did not succeed, for when fellows did not flock to his show. To be able to do the trick the actor had had his hands and feet chiseled through by a Berlin surgeon, paying him a fee of $200, the surgeon considering the wounds would form interesting scars. But after each performance the scars were inflamed and refused to fester, so that the actor was unable to continue the stunt. He went to court, suing the doctor for damages. The court, however, declined to consider his claim, as it considered the entire contract "immoral."

SALLY, THE SCRUB WOMAN MODEL

(©, by D. J. Walsh.)

IN HER well made dark blue suit and small, hammered-down hat, with just the right amount of hair poking out and her cheeks showing a vivid splash of paint, Sally Field made an enticing picture—enticing enough to cause more than one male head to turn for a lingering glance.

A girl with less courage and ambition than Sally would have given up long ago, but she had infinite faith in her ability to become a successful illustrator. She studied at the art school when there was money enough and worked as a model of sorts for other illustrators when her funds were low. Engrossed in her thoughts, she headed up the avenue. Some one called her name and she turned to see Sara Childer, the only girl from her old crowd who felt any sympathy with her ambitions.

"Hello, Sally! Whither bound at such a gait?"

"I'm on my way to Paul Westfield's studios to pry him loose from a job."

"My dear! Not Paul Westfield? Why, I've heard dozens of people say that he is the hardest man in the city to work for. Have you ever seen him?"

"No, I haven't but I mean to today, if I have to pretend I'm the iceman to get in."

"Sally, Sally, there's no one like you!" laughed Sara. "Goodby, dear girl, and the best of luck."

At the viaduct Sally stopped, pretending to look down, but in reality poking desperately at a cinder that had lodged in her eye. A pleasantly impersonal voice made her turn, the injured eye swimming in tears.

"Can't I be of assistance? My friends call me the best amateur cinder-remover in town."

"Oh, if you could do something I should be very grateful." Even in her one-eyed state Sally could see that he was young and far from unpleasing to look at.

A moment of tense silence, a deft twist with the corner of a white handkerchief, and the stranger announced triumphantly that that particular lump of coal would bother her no more.

She thanked him and turned quickly, giving him no time to make social advances, but he followed determinedly at her side.

"I say," he pleaded, "what's your hurry? Couldn't we walk along together?"

In a panic she turned on him, saying sharply:

"I suppose you strike up acquaintances with girls every day by making yourself an indispensable hero. I consider a man who makes himself annoying no better than an ordinary bum." Before he could utter a protest she flashed into an office building.

At five minutes to four Sally mounted the steps leading to a spacious reception room, her shoulders carried well back, her chin tilted at its most charming angle.

"You have an appointment with Mr. Westfield?" interrogated the girl behind the great carved desk.

"No," stated Sally frankly, "but there is no reason why he should not see me. I shan't take more than five minutes of his time if he thinks I won't do."

"I am sorry, but Mr. Westfield has made it a rule never to see any one without an appointment."

Sally went out, her steps lagging, her head bent in seeming dejection.

Shortly after four o'clock, Paul Westfield threw down his brush to rumple his thick blond hair with paint-stained fingers.

"Mary," he called to the girl at the desk, "come here a minute, please. I want you to take a good look at me. Do I look like a common bum to you?"

"Why, no sir, you don't. You look just as usual."

Mary went out, wondering what had come over her employer, who was invariably even tempered.

"Who's there?" he shouted in answer to a knock at the back entrance of the studio.

The door opened slowly, as though only by the greatest effort could it be moved at all, and there appeared a stooped, shaggy old figure, her face half hidden in a peasant shawl, in her hand a bucket and scrub brush.

"Meester Westfield?" she quavered. "My seester, she too seeck to work. I take her place."

"Very well," he nodded indifferently.

The old woman—she looked all of seventy in her dirty sweater and voluminous skirts—tottered slowly across the room to fill her pail. All during the cleaning-up process she talked in a high, querulous voice that drove the already disgruntled illustrator almost to distraction.

"My good woman, I'm sorry, but you'll have to stop that talking. I've had a hard day, and I must have quiet."

Out of the sudden quietness his outburst had created, he heard a quiet voice behind him say:

"Mr. Westfield, I should like so much to work for you. Won't you give me a chance?"

He wheeled about, upsetting the vase at his elbow, to stare at Sally, over whose face a mixture of mirth and fright were struggling for mastery.

"The girl with the cinder in her eye," he stammered. "But how in the deuce did you get in? I've been right here all the time."

"I am the scrub woman," she quavered, slumping down, "my seester, she seeck. I work for her."

"Well, I'll be— I" He stopped short to stare at her in undisguised admiration.

"But where did you pick up this crazy outfit," touching the sweater.

"Oh," Sally explained calmly, "I convinced an old woman in the next block that she wanted to take a nap while I transacted some important business. I'll have to get back or she's liable to try to get into my suit. Don't you think," and there was real fatigue and anxiety in her voice, "I could be of use to you?"

He hesitated, regarding her out of eyes almost closed with laughter. "Surely a nice girl like you wouldn't be safe working for a common bum!"

Her smile flashed out, but she managed to say gravely enough, "I'll do my best to reform you."

Modern Farmer Usually Well Abreast of Times

A Chicago correspondent makes the discovery on his part that the farmer is not the "hick" he is sometimes represented to be, the subject of a press dispatch, in which he states that the coming of the telephone, radio, good roads, automobiles and long distance travel through every section of the country, has brought with it a great change in the farmer, and he can no longer be told by his dress and manners.

The fact is that the representation of the farmer as made in cartoon and story has always been very far from the facts. There are elements in all classes of people that are backward, and the fact that they are so is manifested by them wherever they go, but one does not have to go to the rural sections of the state to find the sort. In fact the proportion is rather lower among the farmers than among people of other occupations.

Newspapers, books, magazines and educational means generally are at the hands of the people who live on the farms, just as they are in the reach of the residents of the cities and towns, and because the farm residents are not so much distracted by the lighter forms of diversion as city people, they make fuller and better use of these facilities, and, man for man, are undoubtedly better informed as to the things worth knowing than their city cousins. And as to the conventions of good society, they suffer not at all in comparison with people from the cities. The farmer does not wear a Prince Albert coat and a high hat when he works in his fields, to be sure, but such things are nor seen in the shops and stores of the cities either.—Columbus Dispatch.

Pemmican Staple Food of Northern Travelers

Pemmican, also spelled pemican, is the name of a food preparation once largely used in the northern part of Canada, and made by cutting the meat of the caribou into thin slices, drying the latter in the sun, or over the smoke of a slow fire, pounding them fine between stones, and incorporating the material with one-third part of melted fat. To this mixture is sometimes added dried fruit, such as choke or June berries. The whole is then compressed into skin bags, in which, if kept dry, it may be preserved for four or five years. The traders, and especially the large fur companies, made a superior kind of pemmican, the meat and fat used being of first-class quality and wholesome dried fruit being added. To the voyageurs and traders of a century and a half ago pemmican was what canned meat and canned fish are to travelers today who go beyond the frontiers of settlement.

The Farmer's Seeds

The playground is the Farmer's field, and half the players are Seeds. They crouch upon the ground at equal distances from each other, and await the Crows (these are the rest of the players).

The Crows approach in single file, with a strutting walk (all of you must have seen crows strutting in the fields). The Seeds are upon all fours, and the Crows have to thread their way in and out of the row.

Suddenly one of the Crows makes a grab at one of the players upon all fours. Naturally these players must be on the alert, although they do not appear so; and the instant the grab is made the Seed must leap to his feet, or dodge to avoid the Crow's touch. If he is not sufficiently quick, he must take his place at the end of the procession of Crows.

On the other hand, if he escapes being touched he may grab the Crow in his turn, and the Crow takes its place at one end of the row of seeds.

When there are a lot of players it is funny to see them strutting in and out of the row of Seeds, because they must strut very slowly.

"The Taming of the Shrew"

This is almost the only one of the Shakespearean comedies that has a downright moral, and yet it is the merriest of them all. It is rapid in action, full of bustle and animation and is redolent of the most racy and delicate humor.

"The character of Petruchio," says Hazlett, "is one that most husbands ought to study, unless the very audacity of his attempt (to tame his self-willed mate) might alarm them more than his success would encourage them."

Changing Thoughts

"You tell your constituents exactly what you think?"

"Exactly," answered Senator Sorghum—"at the time and place I happen to be talking."

The Artful Dodger

"Always face the audience," is the advice given by a famous tenor to those who are taking up singing. Those who have found it necessary to dodge now and again know how valuable this advice is.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Dec. 20 (State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—The market on western New York celery was a little firmer. The demand was moderately active and most sales on stock in the rough were reported at 3.50 per two-thirds crate. California celery in large crates wholesaled at $4.50-$6.25.

Prices on green peas slumped sharply in a dull market. Receipts were liberal and the demand was only moderate. Crates of approximately 50 and 45 pounds from California jobbed out at $4-$6.25. Imports from Mexico realized $5.50-$6.

Little activity prevailed for upstate cabbage. Supplies were moderate. Offerings in the bulk peddled out at $30-$35 per ton on white Danish and $40-$45 on red.

The production of cabbage for kraut manufacture this season is now estimated at 14,500 tons, or 4,000 more than last year. The acreage was the largest in three years, but the yield per acre was only about the average.

The market on state apples was generally inactive on ordinary fruit. It held steady on fancy. Arrivals were moderate. On the downtown piers attractive western New York Baldwins, U. S. grade No. 1, 3-inch pack, brought $7.50 per barrel and 2½-inch $7. McIntosh, U. S. grade No. 1, 2½-inch reached as high as $9.50 and Rhode Island Greenings of the same size and grade brought $8.

The total movement of apples last week was about 900 cars from the west and 760 cars from the east. Increases were registered in New York and the Virginias. About 245 cars were moved from New York state.

SAVAGE DUCK HAWK PREYS ON WASHINGTON PIGEONS

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—A notorious outlaw, a death dealing figure in black, has just been discovered in the somber grey stone tower atop the postoffice department building.

The discovery was made, however, not by postal officials or by the police, but by ornithologists, for the outlaw is a solitary duckhawk. Austin H. Clark of the Smithsonian Institute today reported the presence of the bird, one of the most savage members of the hawk family and one that is usually found along lonely, rockbound seacoasts.

This particular duckhawk has found that the pigeon-clustered nooks and crannies of the huge post office building provide more food with less work and already he has taken a heavy toll from among the helpless birds.

Original "Permanent Wave"

The permanent wave, so called, was started by a woman. In 1873 a patent was issued to Ellen T. Crain of Kansas City, and this was the first apparatus, after which all of today's machines of this character are modeled.

Governor Takes Immediate Action On Prison Report

Will Send Emergency Message to Legislature Covering Recommendations of Colonel Chandler.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 20 (AP).—Immediate action to put into effect five recommendations for bettering prison conditions made in the report of Colonel George F. Chandler on last week's riot at Auburn State Prison was taken today by Governor Roosevelt.

The Governor said he would send a special emergency message to the legislature on January 2 recommending more money for prisoners' food and clothing, civilian employes, a new organization of prison guards and emergency housing relief.

"This is only chapter one," said the Governor, in answer to a question as to his action on Colonel Chandler's recommendation for the abolition of the Prisoners' Mutual Welfare League, which the Governor's personal investigator declared had established a "veritable reign of terror" at Auburn prison, and was responsible for the prison riot.

"The Mutual Welfare League at Auburn has been suspended," the Governor continued, "and therefore is not a current problem, and we are looking into it at Sing Sing."

The Governor summoned the newspapermen to the Executive Chamber today and told them he wished to announce the first practical step toward relieving the situation existing in the state prisons.

"The legislature meets January 1," he said. "On January 2, I shall send a special message to them accompanied by proposed bills, which will carry the emergency clause making immediate passage possible, to take care of certain perfectly obvious things that must be done as quickly as possible.

Nearing 1,000 Membership Goal

Farm Bureau Has 886 Paid-up Members to Date—All 1929 Members Not Yet Renewed—The List by Communities—Winter Program Being Planned.

A final check-up on the Farm Bureau membership today revealed that there are now 886 paid memberships together with about 120 old members who have not yet renewed. Many of these have already signified their intention to send in their dues in the near future. Every indication shows that the goal of 1,000 members will be reached for 1930. All community chairmen and committeemen are cooperating to put it over.

The membership to date is 15 ahead of the same day a year ago. Of the 886 members already paid in, nearly 600 came in voluntarily by mail. The Farm Bureau officials report that this is the most ever received by mail. It has been increasing year by year. President Davis expressed the desire to increase the "pay-by-mail" membership until no canvassing is necessary.

The followng is a list of the memberships to date by communities, as compared with the final figures for 1929:

Charges of Physicians Are Made Standard

Peekskill, N. Y.—Standard rates for medical advice have been established here by the organization of 25 physicians, it was announced recently. A charge of $1 will be made for a telephone consultation.

Others of the new fees are as follows: Two dollars for a visit during office hours; $3 for a visit after hours; $3 for a call by the doctor at a residence or hospital in the day, and $4 for calls after 10 p. m.

One aim of the $1 telephone consultation fee is to discourage persons who use the telephone to avoid paying higher rate for a visit to the physicians or his call at home or hospital.

LET US DUCO or LACQUER YOUR CAR

We can refinish your car in the original colors or you can have one of the latest shades. Perhaps the paint is good on the body of your car, if so, we can dismantle the body and refinish the fenders, wheels and running gears at a reasonable cost.

Do not let your car go through the winter months with the paint half off the wheels, and rusty spots here and there on the fenders and splash aprons.

We can make the fenders look and wear comparable to baked enamel. Just give us a ring and we will be pleased to estimate on your job no matter how small or large.

Our motto is "A SATISFIED CUSTOMER."

Sue for Injuries In Auto Accident

In an effort to recover damages alleged to have resulted from an automobile accident, Eva Gilbert, Emery Price and Dr. John C. Pearson are plaintiffs in an action against Adele Conway, the trial of which was opened in Supreme Court before Judge Charles E. Nichols Thursday afternoon. The plaintiffs charge the defendant with hitting the car in which they were parked, injuring them. Cleon B. Murray is counsel for the plaintiffs and William D. Brinnier, Jr. for defendant.

Emery Price, the first witness to take the stand, explained that on August 1, 1929, he with [illegible] Gilbert, husband of one of the defendants, was fixing a tire on the machine in which he and others were riding. He stated that the car was parked in front of the home of Dr. Pearson in Phillipsport, and that the doctor came outside to see the nature of the trouble. Mr. Price said that he was tightening the bolts on the wheel, having just about completed changing a flat tire, when he heard a shout and then all went black.

Mr. Gilbert, who was putting the [illegible] tire on the rack at the rear of the machine, stated that he heard the shout, and that when he was able to see what had happened he noticed that Mr. Emery and Dr. Pearson had fallen to the ground.

Mrs. Beatrice Price, who was [illegible] in the front seat of the car, was the next to testify. She stated that she saw a car coming up the road. The oncoming machine, she said, drove very near to the car she was in, and then she fainted.

Dr. Benjamin F. Neal of Ellenville who was called to treat Dr. Pearson, took the stand to explain the nature of the doctor's injuries. He said that he found the doctor unconscious with a bruise on his right temple, both legs bruised below the knees and bruises on the elbows and hands. He stated that the doctor was unconscious for three days, and his eyes were weak and his hearing affected. Dr. Pearson is 72 years old, and it was explained that he was healthy before the accident.

Dr. Pearson was the next to testify. He seemed to be crippled and it was only with the aid of the attorneys that he was able to reach the witness chair. He stated that he had practiced for more than 35 years in Phillipsport and was graduated from two universities. He said that his back bothered him, but that he did not learn of this injury until he was able to leave bed and try to walk. He corroborated the testimony of Dr. Neal concerning his other injuries. Court was then adjourned until this morning, because William D. Brinnier, defense attorney, was called away suddenly.

Frederick S. Benedict of Montclair, N. J., who was driving his automobile at the point of the accident at the time it happened was the first witness to take the stand this morning, and the first witness to testify for the defense. He stated that he was driving down the road and that Mrs. Conway, the defendant, was following his machine. He said that he was about to pass the parked car of the Gilberts when he saw another car coming in the opposite direction and a woman riding a horse at the extreme left side of the road. He thought, he said, that he would be unable to pass the Gilbert machine and so he brought his car to a quick stop about [illegible] past the Gilbert car. Mrs. Conway was following him [illegible] the road [illegible] finding that he could [illegible] the accident. Mr. Benedict stated that he moved his car to [illegible] the road and passed on the right hand side.

When he first saw Dr. Pearson he was [illegible]

Two weeks later Mr. Benedict stated that he saw Dr. Pearson [illegible] with Mr. Benedict as the son of [illegible] at that time [illegible]

Mrs. Conway, the defendant, was the third and last witness for the defense. She stated that she was following the Benedict car and that she was traveling at about [illegible] feet. She said that she did not see the Gilbert car until the Benedict machine turned out to pass it. She also stated that she saw the woman on the horse and pulled her machine from the opposite direction, so that it seemed impossible for her to pass. She then turned to the right and the next she brought her car to a stop. When she first saw the doctor, he was being held up by someone. She was traveling about 20 miles an hour, she said. She further stated that she never said that she was to blame for the accident, and didn't remember hitting the doctor, although she admitted that she must have done so. She said that the only thing that she could think of doing to avoid a terrible accident was to leave the road, which she did.

The defense rested with her testimony and the attorneys were given time to sum their cases before noon.

ALIENISTS EXAMINE LAWRENCE WILBUR

Alienists from the Middletown hospital were at the Ulster county jail this afternoon to examine Lawrence Wilbur, 17-year-old boy who fatally shot his younger sister and brother at Woodstock last Monday. If found normal, or reasonably so, Wilbur will be sent to a reformatory, while if the examination shows him to be mentally defective he will be sent to an institution for the treatment of his case. No decision had been reached by the alienists up until the time that The Freeman went to press.

Process of Leavening Bread Is Ancient One

Leavened bread, or bread which is made from distended dough, has been made since very early times. In fact, the leavening of bread was a practice known to the ancient Egyptians. They [illegible] to make the new dough, they used to add a portion of dough which had been allowed to become sour. This old dough was called ferment, and gave the name to this process of fermentation. This ferment evolved carbon dioxide gas in the dough and resulted in the formation of innumerable cells within the dough. These were distended by the heat of baking and the loaves formed presented an infinite number of minute honeycombed gas pockets. The same is the case when yeast is used. At the present day thanks to [illegible] more scientific methods of introducing carbon dioxide to dough to make it rise have been made available. [illegible] the [illegible] chemical reaction [illegible] use of yeast; use of baking powders.

Ladies Made Their Own Shoes

For the moment Miss Milbanke is still at Seaham, still earnestly writing poetry, and as a contrast making shoes. This activity was a by-product of the French revolution. Girls were, for some reason unexplained, taught to make their own shoes, and Annabella learned like the rest—apparently under Clermont's supervision, for the magazine displays an advertisement of "Messrs. Milbanke and Clermont's superior style of cutting shoes for ladies of fashion." Shoes, it is true, were fragile affairs, made of the thinnest kid or satin. . . . Poetry and shoemaking were part of the daily round.—From "The Life of Lady Byron," by Ethel Colburn Mayne.

Abortive Thought

Organisms of Sponge

Little is known of the life history of the commercial sponges. In some species, if not all, the sexes are distinct, the female predominating. The young produced from the eggs are free swimming organisms and are still of very small size when they settle and become permanently attached. This must be a critical stage in their life history, for they are so minute that a very long duration of air would be sufficient to [illegible] and another thing, as most of the [illegible] is covered with soft [illegible] sediments, the mortality of this period must be very high.

A submarine volcano may pile up a [illegible] or form a new island. After the close of the eruption the island was soon swept away by the waves, and it had been worn down to sea level by October of the same year.

Others Are Also Dumb

The unsophisticated youth looked up as we approached.

"Excuse me," I said, "but could you show us exactly where we are?" and [illegible] the map.

He took it and looked at it for a moment. Then he grinned.

"This is a map of Surrey," he said politely.

"I know that," I said. "What we want to know is exactly whereabouts in Essex we are."

"You're not," he said. "You're in Kent."—Border Cities Star.

Short, Short, Short Story

One time a nice woman had a perfectly adorable husband. He was tall and handsome, kind, considerate and cheerful. So he never made faces at her when they played bridge and never brought common-looking people home to dinner and never walked on his heels when he danced with her or did anything that a nice woman's perfectly adorable husband wouldn't do. But one evening he came home and failed to notice she had gotten a new permanent wave—the big brute. —Kansas City Star.

Some thing new in our [illegible] entertainment may soon be offered. The Farm Journal says scientists are trying to cross the watermelon with the grapefruit.

Slowing away has become so unpopular recently that thousands of transatlantic travelers have reconsidered and decided to make the trip in the regular way.

"Paul Revere," says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, "made the famous ride on a white horse." Then there is a red-headed girl history has never accounted for.

Sugar for Candy

A pinch of cornstarch or flour mixed into the sugar when making candy will usually prevent curdling. The acid in the brown sugar is responsible for the curdling.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

BRIDGE-GRAFTING ON GIRDLED TREE

Important to Keep Clon Wood Dormant by Burying.

The one way to save girdled trees is by bridge-grafting, says Prof. G. W. Peck of Cornell university.

Bridge-grafting is done with clon wood, cut from a thrifty tree such as McIntosh or Northern spy. One-year-old sprouts are best, and if these are not obtainable, water sprouts may be used. Professor Peck says that even those trees which are only slightly girdled should be bridge-grafted. The age of the tree apparently in no way affects the success of the operation, since trees thirty years old, or older, have been saved by grafting.

It is important to keep the clon wood dormant; this may be done by burying the shoots in well drained sandy soil. The most favorable time for bridge-grafting is in the spring when the buds are swelling.

"One of the most serious mistakes made by the amateur," said Professor Peck, "is the use of too few clons. As many as possible should be used, placed at distances from one and one-half to two inches apart. I have known as many as twenty-three clons to be bridge-grafted on one tree."

Probably the most effective way to prevent girdling by rodents is to place many poisoned baits about the trees. These must be placed in closed traps so that birds cannot get at them. Another method is to sink a cylinder of galvanized wire mesh around the trees, but this is not wholly dependable. If the roots are too badly girdled, it is wiser to let the tree go, than to attempt to save it with doubtful success, and at great expense.

Pruning Apple Orchard Rather Difficult Job

In pruning old apple orchard, try to avoid cutting off any large branches. Large pruning wounds heal over very slowly and often allow decay to enter the heart of the tree. Cutting off large branches will create "holes" in the bearing surface. Such holes often mean seriously reduced yields, sun-scalded branches, and a jungle of water-sprouts. Our advice would be that you cut off all dead wood and then thin out the smaller branches in such a way that each branch will have its own small quota of room and sunlight. The tree should not be too thick and neither should it be too open. By thinning out the smaller branches, you will make a fine-mesh sieve of your tree, through which the sunlight can filter. The top of the tree should receive the most attention because a thick top will act as an umbrella which will keep the sunlight out of the rest of the tree. Do not leave any stubs, but make all cuts close to the parent branch. Our final advice is that you do not prune too much. Do not cut off a branch unless you know why you are doing so, and when in doubt as to whether a branch should come off or not give it the benefit of the doubt and leave it on the tree.

Strawberry Beds Should Be Mulched When Frozen

Strawberry beds should not be mulched until the ground has frozen at least two inches deep. If the mulch is applied before this time, the subsoil will not have been cooled sufficiently to stop root growth, and after the mulch has been applied and snow falls upon it, this warmth in the subsoil will come up and warm the soil around the roots and start growth. Then when severe winter sets in, the ill effects will be much worse than if the mulch had never been applied at all.

Horticultural Facts

Small trees must be protected from injury by jack rabbits.

Cut a poor tree when it is young to permit a good one to replace it.

Keep poor apples off the market because they will spoil prices in spite of the short crop and increased demand.

Care of the spray machine equipment includes thoroughly cleaning the hose line, nozzle and cut-off and storing in a dry place.

Mark the weak trees in the orchard so that you will know next spring which ones should have a generous supply of a nitrogen fertilizer.

Assist stored apples to breathe correctly by furnishing plenty of air. Proper ventilation will aid in keeping the fruit longer in storage. If the humidity is not right, the floors should be sprinkled.

If the soil is in condition to work without injury to its texture, the last of February and the first week of March is the best time to plant orchard trees. The latest safe date is April 1. Sour cherry trees are not of much value if set that late unless they have been in first-class storage.

Deception on Both Sides

Those who advocate annihilation of the Santa Claus myth would destroy the fondest deception in the world, concealment by the parents of the fact that he doesn't exist, and concealment by the children of their knowledge that he doesn't, each for the other's pleasure.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THREW LITTLE BABY INTO ABANDONED IRON FURNACE

Police who found the baby on a pile of junk at the bottom of a 40-foot drop, believed poverty and ill health had deranged the mother's mind.

Christmas Mail Growing Heavier

Volume of Today Brings Our Mere People With Christmas Packages —All of Letter Carriers Had Assistants Today.

While today being the first sunday of the week there was a marked increase in the amount of Christmas mail deposited at the general post office and the two substations for delivery. So heavy was the mail that Postmaster Walter P. Crane engaged thirty-five extra help to assist in the work of distribution.

Every mail carrier in the city today was given an assistant to aid in delivery. Saturday the number of extra help will be increased to at least fifty-five.

Indications now point to the fact that there will be a very heavy last minute rush to mail Christmas packages. Those who expect to mail Christmas gifts should make it a point to get them in the mail this week so that they can be assured that the gifts will be delivered before Christmas. There will be no delivery of mail on Christmas Day.

Says Execution Was Murder

Nogales, Ariz., Dec. 20 (AP)—Mexican Federal authorities today claimed they had crushed an incipient revolution in executing General Carlos Bouquet as a traitor.

Disputing that claim, Jose Vasconcelos, who crossed the international border into this country recently after being defeated in the presidential election by Pascual Ortiz Rubio, has branded the execution as "outright murder."

Federal officials said they seized quantities of arms and ammunition, apparently collected for Revolutionary purposes, after Bouquet's arrest. Vasconcelos asserted that Bouquet had neither arms nor ammunition and that the general "was not even carrying his own personal pistol."

At any rate, General Bouquet, his body punctuated by twelve Federal bullets, lies in a lonely hillside grave eight miles south of Nogales, Sonora, where he fell before a firing squad commanded by his one-time friend, General Juan Rico, Federal Commander of Northern Sonora.

The execution, which took place Wednesday, was announced yesterday.

Christmas Party Held at Dugout

Ex-servicemen of Joyce-Schirick Post, 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, their wives and children, enjoyed a Christmas party at the post Dugout on East Chestnut street Thursday night, when Santa Claus arrived with a bagful of presents for the kiddies, who were made very happy.

The regular meeting of the post was adjourned so that the vets could take full part in the jollification. They thoroughly enjoyed the event as much as the little ones, who gathered about the beautiful Christmas tree which was elaborately trimmed and lighted. The tree was donated by Garbarino Brothers.

Santa Claus adhered to the strict old custom of asking each little boy and girl about his and her behavior. Everyone was good of course, and received a present. Old Kris Kringle was pleased with the conduct of the kiddies who favored him with vocal solos and recitations.

After the Christmas tree party, the Vets and their wives enjoyed an old-fashion dance with music by Pete Boice and his accordion.

Everything Ready For Tonight's Armory Fights

The stage is set for Captain E. C. Lawson's card of ringlet nights at the armory tonight when a record attendance of local sport fans is expected to crowd the big drill shed.

Early in the evening the huge doors will swing wide to admit early comers, who desire to get prize ringside seats. They will be at a premium, it is safe to say, as the fight fans previous to the regular contests without any Friday's program.

The eight individual contests of 32 rounds, made up of two eight-rounders attractions, two six and one four-round affair. Nick Zinna of this city and Harry Mulcahy of New York will fight it out in the main event, while Johnny Blaine and Charlie Melvin, two local fantams, will furnish the little debate in the semi-final. Both contests are eight rounders.

In the six round affairs Pete "Kid" Buckman of this city will swap jabs with Eddie McKenna of the 69th Infantry of New York city, and Roy Van Buren, another local boy, will defend himself against the aggressive Eddie Ziegler of New York.

Jerry Sampere, the Poughkeepsie terror, and Charlie Wimms, the tough colored soldier of West Point, are slated as opponents in the four-round curtain raiser. This bout promises to be a toe-to-toe slugfest and one of the most interesting ring wars on the program.

Bass Favored to Beat Tod Morgan

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The betting fraternity is willing to give odds that the junior lightweight championship will transfer its headquarters from Seattle, Wash., to Philadelphia tonight when Tod Morgan defends his somewhat synthetic title against Benny Bass in Madison Square Garden.

Overnight odds made the deadly punching Bass an 8 to 5 favorite but these were expected to narrow to around 6 to 5 at ring time. The fight is for 15 rounds.

Morgan will have an advantage in weight, height and reach, the stockily built Bass is much the harder puncher. Bass' last major engagement here was against Tony Canzoneri for the featherweight championship. On that occasion, Bass suffered a broken bone in his shoulder early in the fight but fought so savagely that he barely dropped the decision to the great little New York Italian. Morgan is a frail looking fighter who can box with any of them, but whether he can stand up under Bass' punishing blows the experts are inclined to doubt.

Two English fighters will be seen on the preliminary card. Nel Tarleton a clever featherweight, meets Al Ridgeway of Jersey City, in the eight-round semi-final, and Dom Volante, another British featherweight, meets Frankie Marchese of New York in another eight-rounder.

It is not too late to give a short but snappy report for another able assistants at Uncle Sheridan's well-known football training school Chuck Collins, head coach at the University of North Carolina.

The achievements of Collins with the Tar Heels this year rank with those of Slip Madigan of St. Mary's, Jimmy Phelan of Purdue, Elmer Layden of Duque or even the Great Rock himself, aided and abetted by Tom Lieb.

North Carolina won nine of its ten games and rolled up the staggering total of 316 points to beat the record of any Tar Heel gridiron crew in history. The team was knocked out of the Southern Conference race by a 19-12 defeat at the hands of Georgia. This happened a week after North Carolina had started the downfall of Georgia Tech's champions. Otherwise the Collins crew beat all opposition by lop-sided margins, including a 43-0 triumph over the Maryland team that held Yale to a draw and a 48-7 victory over Duke that was as impressive as Pittsburgh's showing against the same outfit.

Collins is another of the boys in the "Four Horsemen" cast who have gone out and "made good" in the coaching game. He played end on the famous 1924 team at South Bend.

It appears there are some strings attached to the British Lawn Tennis Association's endorsement of the plan for "Open championships openly arrived at," sponsored by the American ruling powers of the august U. S. L. T. A.

Britian endorses the idea "in principle," but with the restriction that only one such tournament be held annual in England: further that every amateur shall be "specifically prohibited from advertising or permitting his name to be advertised commercially to his own advantage in connection with any match or competition in which he is entered or is a competitor."

In other words, it would be a violation for the enterprising promoter of an open championship to ballyhoo the prospect of Big Bill Tilden versus Vincent Richards or Rene Lacoste vs. Karel Kozeluh in the main bout.

The forthcoming East-West football contest at San Francisco between all-star teams offers the nearest thing to a test of All-American selections that has been arranged so far.

Dutch Clark of Colorado College, All-American quarterback in 1928, has joined the Far Western forces, along with Bert Schwartz of California, All American guard this year; Captain Roy Riegels of California, center; Ackerman, St. Mary's, tackle; Fullback Earl Pomeroy of Utah and Benny Lom, California's triple-threat back.

In the eastern ranks are four 1929 All-American stars—Elmer Sleight and Bronko Nagurski, tackles; Jack Cannon of Notre Dame, guard, and Tony Holm of Alabama, fullback. Tanner, Minnesota end; Lloyd Brazil, Detroit's crack halfback, and Willis Glassgow, great Iowa ball-toter, also joined under the Eastern banner.

Joerling Has Bowling Honors

George Joerling by dumping the pins for 245 in a single game at Colonial Bowling Alleys, North Front street recently, settled the dispute concerning the monthly high score which was a toss up between Rube Leventhal and Gil Sampson, who had spilled the pins for a 236 count. If someone does not beat the 245 score, Joerling will be the prize winner for December.

Mrs. Bertha Diel, who averaged 166 in 65 games last year in the New Jersey state tournament for women, now holds high mark for ladies at Colonial Alleys. Her record is 165. Mrs. Diel, who formerly lived in New Jersey, bowls at the Colonial Alleys every Saturday night.

To Arms, Men! Jimmy's Rarin'

It's going to be a hard winter for the welterweights bidding for attention as championship contenders. Jimmy McLarnin will see to that. Jimmy is a sure shot to meet Jackie Fields in a title bout next summer.

By JAY VESSELS
Sports Editor
(Associated Press Feature Service.)

New York, (AP).—Call him the Belfast Bomber, Clouting Celt or whatever you wish. You can't go wrong using strong pugilistic nicknames on this man Jimmy McLarnin.

Young Jimmy absolutely is one of the choicest little fighting machines of the era. He is just good enough to be rated in the east an even money bet to uncrown Jackie Fields, the welterweight champion.

McLarnin slipped to the brink of disaster a few months ago by losing on a technical knockout to Ray Miller, then waltzing ten miserable rounds with Miller in a return bout.

His real worth as a fighter was shown in a comeback as a welterweight when Jimmy flattened several of the boys in the 144-pound division. Notable among these were Sergeant Sammy Baker and Ruby Goldstein, who lasted two rounds each against the Vancouver annihilator.

That inevitable McLarnin-Fields championship scrap has the boxing writers tuned up like the thing was coming off next month.

From this angle it looks like a cinch for early summer in one of the New York ball parks. And it is safe to assume that if Madison Square Garden already hasn't sewed up the bout, it is in there concentrating on a show that should be good for a gate of upwards of $500,000.

Since Jackie Fields avowed he would be a fightin' champion, his quick acceptance of an opportunity to meet McLarnin is anticipated.

Four years ago when he was fighting as a bantamweight Fields lost to McLarnin on the only knockout of his career. Jackie was only 18 then. His eagerness to do over an assignment bungled in his juvenile days is taken for granted.

Spinnys Lose To Monticello

Spinny's Radio Five lost its second game of the season to Monticello Thursday night, when the mountaineers, whose first victory was by a 37-29 margin, outscored the Port Eweners, 41-24, at Pythian Hall, their home playground.

The Monticello boys broke through Spinny's defense at the outset and led the scoring at half time, 16-12. The Port Eweners' attempts to form a strong enough barrier to hold off the Mountaineer scorers was way below par. A. Short, left guard of the Spinny team, showed up well. He held his man, Calhoun, a star forward for Monticello, to six points. Nelson, with 17 markers, did the heavy shooting for the winners, and was highest individual scorer of the game. Dan Joyce corralled 12 points for the Spinnys.

On Thursday, December 26, Spinny's Radio Five will play the strong Renaissance Five of New York. The metropolis quintet is a colored aggregation, known as the negro basketball champions of the world. Port Ewen will hold several stiff practices prior to taking on the Renaissance.

BASKETBALL STARS FROM SOPHOMORES

Some Sport in Bringing the Youngsters Into Limelight.

All Big Ten basketball fans are familiar with the capabilities of "Stretch" Murphy, Ted Chmielewski and all of the other famous veterans of the league, but the stars of tomorrow will come out of the present sophomores, and there may be some sport in bringing these youngsters into range of the spotlight now.

Purdue has a good prospect in Johnny Wooden of Martinsville, the "india rubber man" of Indiana prep basketball from 1925 to 1928, who is a master dribbler and is expected to develop into a floor guard of the type of Dan White and "Windy" Robbins. He has a great eye and specializes in sudden charges under the basket, ending with an elastic bounce that puts him in scoring position.

Billy Hygrave, the tallest man on the Indiana university squad, standing 6 feet 3 inches tall, looks like the regular back guard on the Hoosier team.

Bill Newbold, who received all-state mention while playing at Rushville, Ind., is Notre Dame's best sophomore. He is tall, fast and good on defense. He scored ten points in the opener with Kalamazoo and is slated to fill the position left by Frank Crowe, all-star forward for the last two years.

Reg Hildreth of Valparaiso, Ind., is playing regularly at forward for Iowa. He is also a baseball star, likely to make shortstop on the Hawk nine next spring, succeeding Willis Glassgow.

A little old cowbell is becoming as famous a victory token in the South as the Minnesota-Michigan little brown jug. Since 1924 the bovine neck ornament has been the prized emblem of the victor in the Georgia Tech-Vanderbilt gridiron combats. Possession of the token has changed with regularity, neither team having been victorious two years in a row since Ed F. Cavaleri of Atlanta put up the clanging trophy.

Rugby, according to a university president, failed in America because it taught a lesson we already knew too well—to pass the buck; get rid of the ball. Football, says he, demands holding onto the ball and doing the best you can with it. Whether that statement is unquestionably true or not, the fact remains that all sorts of sport tend to raise the ethical standards generally among the people who are interested in them.

One of the fallacies that creep continually into all-American reports is the premise that the team is being put up just like a real college varsity for actual competition. The catch is—what style of play is to be used, a shifty, open, forward passing game; a power attack or a kick and wait for the breaks? Obviously the players selected for one style will not do for another.

Nagurski of the Gophers, who played fullback nearly all of the time this year for his team, is used frequently at tackle on the all-stars, although the New York Evening Post's poll for its all-American brought him 148 points as a back to 48 as a tackle.

As a matter of fact, of course, everybody knows that the Bronk would have been a better end than anything else, if the needs of his team had not required him to perform at other positions.

Harvard's varsity hockey team will play 14 games, with the possibility that two more may be added to the schedule released recently. The first game was with Boston university. A two-game series will be played with Toronto, Boston university and Dartmouth, and the best two out of three with Yale.

Duke university, baby member of the Southern Conference, will make its first serious bid for Dixie laurels in the 1930 football season, having booked five games with conference foes.

This season Duke's only conference opponents were Louisiana State, North Carolina and North Carolina State.

The Blue Devils will meet South Carolina, Kentucky, Washington and Lee, North Carolina and North Carolina State next fall.

Tennessee hasn't been beaten on its home field in four years.

"It's the bunk."

That's what Harry Kipke, coach of Michigan's varsity football team, thinks of Glen Warner's plan for scoring gridiron games. Kipke found only two faults with the rules as observed the past season; he thinks a fumbled lateral pass should be dead at the point of fumbling, and that a kicking team should be allowed to run with the ball after having one of its punts blocked.

"Warner's scheme of counting one point for each first down and abolishing the point after touchdown would work unfairly and would put a premium on the team that can make first down in its own territory, but can't gain an inch after passing midfield," Coach Kipke said.

"The kick after touchdown requires perfect co-ordination of the whole team, and there's no reason why it should be erased from the rule book."

It took eleven years for the Fordham eleven to beat Boston college, and the New Yorkers have the goal posts as tokens of the triumph.

The Pastor Says:

Failures make fine raw material for successes . . . When Suffering enters the house of our life, it is well to admit also her handmaids, Courage, Patience and Sympathy.—John Andrew Holmes.

Army Still Behind Schedule

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—Army's football squad today was on its way toward California's balmy weather—but still behind schedule.

Its special train three hours late in Chicago, the Army corps failed to stop at Galesburg, Ill., and was routed out of one of its stopoff workouts. The failure to stop at Galesburg disappointed townspeople and Knox College students, who had prepared a huge greeting for the Army squad.

Coach Biff Jones hoped to be able to sidetrack the train for a workout today at Syracuse, Kans., while he put the men through a signal drill.

A stop was made at South Bend, Ind., late yesterday, but not for the purpose of taking practice. The cadets listened to cheers and wished good luck in its game on the coast from its important rival and 1929 conqueror—Notre Dame. The players were train-tired following the slow journey from the east, but were looking forward to weather in which they could venture forth comfortably.

Kingston at Catskill Tonight

Kingston High School Varsity basketball team will travel to Catskill tonight to play its second game of the season with the Greene county quintet, which was flayed by Coach Kiss's men to the tune of 39-19 last Friday in the local school gym.

The courtsters who upheld Kingston last week and who likely will get another shot at the Catskillites tonight are as follows: Cullum, Post, Fuchsle, Van Deusen, Blackwell, Parks and Clarke.

Catskill's starting lineup will be picked from the following roster: Riley, Woodruff, Feister, Traver, Saunders, Schubert and Neal.

GREENLEAF AGAIN POCKET BILLIARD CHAMPION

Detroit, Dec. 20 (AP).—Ralph Greenleaf of New York again holds the world's pocket billiard championship. This star cueist defeated Ed win Rudolph of Chicago in the play off for the world's crown by 125 to 69 in 18 innings last night. The game was not spectacular, but was marked by hard fighting and excellent defensive work.

Both players showed the strain of the play. Greenleaf miscued twice and made one foul, offenses seldom charged against headliners. Rudolph also was guilty of at least four misses on easy shots.

Right from the start it settled down to a battle of defense. At the end of nine innings Rudolph was leading, 25 to 0. In the tenth inning Greenleaf found his stride and playing deliberately, accumulated 44. Then he miscued on a side rail shot for the corner. Rudolph had an excellent chance at this stage but was stopped at 23 when he missed a left hand shot on a short try for the corner.

Greenleaf had later runs of 41, 12, 2 and 22. The best Rudolph could do was 14. He had other runs of 7 and 2.

National Hockey League to Change Scoring Rules

All scoring records, both for individuals and teams in the National Hockey league, are certain to be broken this year. Not only has the forward pass rule opened the way for increased scoring chances but the scoring rules have been changed to add a far greater number of assists this season. An assist counts one point, the same as a goal.

In the scoring rules this year a player will be given an assist whenever a goal is scored from a rebound of his shot. The new rules also make it possible to score two assists on one goal in a great many chances. Whenever there is a double pass in the scoring zone both players passing will be credited with assists.

Bill Marked 18 Years Ago Is Back to Owner

Waterloo, N. Y.—Two old friends who were forced into a registration parting here 18 years ago are now inseparably reunited. They are a watch fob and a $5 bill. Three times they have met, once members of them away and now they are to remain companions for life, the owner says.

Eighteen years ago a local youth called the possessor of a brand new $5 bill. It was all the money he possessed and he was forced to part with it. He wrote the number and date of it and jotted the number of the bill on a card in his pocket.

Eleven years ago while in Dallas, Texas as part of Uncle Sam's World war force, this same young man drew his first pay as a soldier. Among others was the identical $5 bill he had marked seven years before. But the bill went as it had before and nothing more was thought of it.

Recently the man showed the bill, the initials and the date still visible on its worn surface, to some friends who were with him when the bill was marked and first spent by him, and compared the number with that he had noted down. He received it in change from a $20 bill when he made a purchase in a local store, he said. It was tucked away.

Man Falls Over Cliff Writes Will and Dies

Louisa, Ky.—A will scribbled on a leaf torn from a check book told a story of lingering death when the body of Hardy Hay, sixty-year-old farmer, was crumpled at the foot of a 30-foot cliff in a remote section of this country.

Missing from his home eight days, the farmer was not discovered until a searching posse had scoured two counties. Hay left his home on a campaign tour in his race for membership in the county board of education, and his family did not become alarmed at his absence until his mule returned riderless a short time ago.

The will indicated he had fallen over the cliff and had broken his thigh. It was dated one week before he was found. It gave a brief but graphic account of the accident and said he expected to die before help arrived. Disposition of his property was made in the closing paragraphs.

CANADIAN INVENTS AN AUTO-AMPHIBIAN

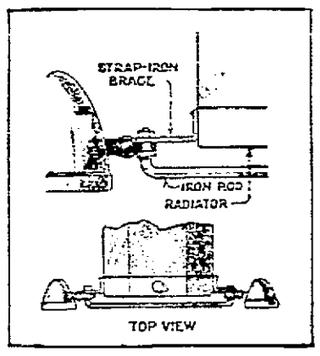

An auto amphibian which was invented and constructed by a resident of Winnipeg. The machine was recently driven through the streets of Winnipeg and then into the Red river. It then made the trip from Winnipeg to Lake Manitoba, up the Red river, a distance of 70 miles. It has a water speed of twenty miles per hour and is fitted with peculiar plane positions attached to racks fastened to the car and when out of the water they can be removed and put on top of the rack. It was designed principally for fishing.

ANTI-RATTLER FOR FRONT CAR FENDER

Two Pieces of Strap Iron on Lamp Lug Stop Noise.

You can prevent the front fenders of certain types of small cars from rattling by installing two small pieces of strap iron as shown in the drawing. The strap iron should be about 3-16 inches thick and the pieces about 3½ inches long. They are bent at right angles, and a hole is drilled at the outer end, to fit on a lug of the lamp bracket. The installation shown was made on a Chevrolet of the 490-type. Before drilling the holes, place the pieces beside the radiator shell so that they will spring tightly against it after they have been attached to the lamp-bracket lug.—Guy E. Clark, Everett, Wash., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Good Performance Will Depend on Spark Plugs

Spark plug must be in good condition and the electrodes must be adjusted correctly for not only satisfactory all-around performance but especially to relieve strain on the battery and facilitate easy starting, which is so important during the winter season.

A surprisingly large percentage of poor performance may be traced and often eliminated by an examination of the spark plugs. Hard starting, missing at low idling speeds; sluggishness and power loss on hills and hard pulls are often traceable to the spark plugs. This is why car manufacturers recommend that spark plugs be renewed every 10,000 miles, and inspected at least twice a year.

Lottery's Odd Object

In 1761 the Rhode Island assembly authorized a lottery for making a passage around Pawtucket falls "so that fish of almost every kind, who choose fresh water at certain seasons of the year, may pass with ease."

TRAVEL HIGH ON POOR HIGHWAYS

Motorists Pay One-Third More Over Bad Roads.

(By E. E. Doty)

The motorist who pays out a dollar in car operating expenses in traveling over high type roads, must pay $1.18 in traveling the same distance on intermediate type roads. The travel cost of the same distance on low type roads is $1.38.

Cost of Gravel.

These costs, determined by Prof. T. R. Agg and H. S. Carter of Iowa State college for the "imaginary" average car, clearly indicate the high cost of traveling over so-called low type roads. According to their calculations the cost of driving over gravel and so on is one-third greater than driving over smooth concrete.

For the sake of convenience, let it be conservatively considered that the cost of driving a car over concrete is five cents a mile. A dollar will then buy 20 miles of travel on hard pavement. The average motorist now travels some 5,000 miles yearly at, therefore, an estimated cost of $300. If the motorist's traveling were all to be done over intermediate type roads rather than concrete, the additional cost for this "privilege" would be $54. But if the motorist were compelled to bump over low type roads the extra travel cost would be $114—which is $114 that could be better spent.

Money on Improvements.

A motorists' association has just pointed out that 16 states this year spent less money on highway improvement than they did last year, even in the face of mounting car registrations. Obviously, this cannot be called economy, for every mile of unimproved road a community tolerates costs the taxpayer hard cash through extra car expenses which have to do with fuel and oil, car depreciation, tire wear and allied items.

Cheaper motoring can only come through more extensive highway improvements and these must come through the expedient of making more money available for highway construction.

Motor Lubrication Is of Great Importance

Motor lubrication, important at all times, is doubly so during warm weather when longer trips at higher speeds are made, according to C. W. McKinley, research engineer, who says:

"Oil suitable for summer driving, however, may not be suitable for winter driving, when a lighter oil should be used in most cases. Consult chart at your service station and change oil if necessary.

"Another important factor in maintaining proper lubrication is attention to the oil filter. This device filters the oil and keeps it clean. But after 10,000 miles the filtering unit becomes filled with dirt taken from the oil and needs to be serviced.

"By having the oil filter serviced at 10,000 miles, by using the proper grade of oil, and by following the car manufacturer's recommendation as to changing oil the motorist is assured of trouble-free operation, so far as the all-important matter of lubrication is concerned."

Bad Roads Have Fewest Automobile Accidents

The most common excuses given for road accidents are bad roads, foggy weather, poor light and defective brakes. However according to the statistics Bureau of the National Automobile club, these claims are not borne out by official report. Out of 1,327 accidents during one single year, 1,000 took place on perfectly dry roads, 1,258 in clear weather, and 996 in good daylight.

Out of 1,000 vehicles involved in accidents found that 2,000 were in good condition mechanically and only 20 were found to have defective brakes. The chief reasons for the accidents were reported to be careless and reckless driving.

Use for Apricot Kernel

Until chemists learned to free the kernel of the apricot seed from its bitter quality it was considered waste material. Now, owing to its similarity in taste to the almond, extract from the kernel is used in flavoring macaroons.

Way Termed "Chapels"

A prominent churches in England which do not belong to the established religion are generally referred to as chapels. This usage grew up in the early days of the separatists when most of the dissenting church buildings were much smaller than the churches of the established religion. "Chapel" was previously applied, and still is applied to any small place of worship, especially one connected with a parish, palace or a larger church.—Detroit News.

Why Less Fruit Is Grown

In the early days of the Central West, the farmer with an orchard planted in the virgin soil owed his fine crop of winter apples to the wild bees that lived in the hollow trees of the woods nearby, as much as to any other factor. Of course, he had a rich soil to begin with and many birds to keep off insect pests. But as the forests were destroyed, the bee trees were lost. As fields of grain succeeded the woods, fruit crops diminished.

JUST HUMANS
By Gene Carr

"YES, IT'S ALL HERE—HE DIDN'T CHEAT ME A BIT!"

Why We Do What We Do
by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE ARE CRAZY

"HE'S crazy."

Did you ever hear that said of anyone who seemed to be fairly safe from spending the remainder of his natural life within the confines of a lunatic asylum? And do you know anybody who has not been called crazy at some time? It all depends on the point of view and who is passing judgment.

We are all crazy.

Two lunatics enjoying the cool balmy breezes under the shade trees of the asylum grounds were observing some men at work on a construction job out in the blazing hot sun. "And they say that we are crazy," said one to the other, as they both chuckled ironically.

The word crazy is used loosely and broadly to apply to anyone who differs radically from us.

The holdup man thinks the honest laborer who breaks his back for a few dollars a day is out of his head, while the honest man with the much-bended back returns the compliment when he reads in the paper that the holdup man has just been sentenced to a long term in prison or to a decidedly short term in the electric chair.

The man who works on a skyscraper, hundreds of feet above ground may regard the pilot of the airplane that whizzes past him as out of his head; while the man on the street, seeing the riveter at work on a few suspended pieces of steel, shakes his head and dubs him absolutely nutty.

All pioneers and inventors are set down as crazy because they are trying to do something different, something that seems foolish to everybody else.

We call every man crazy who is radically different. We even speak of the customs and dress of foreigners as crazy. These appear crazy to us because we are not used to them and ours appear crazy to foreigners for the same reason.

We who manage to remain outside the insane asylum are fortunate in that only now and then we run across a person who is absolutely sure that we are hopelessly crazy. When enough of your fellows decide that you are crazy, the Lord help you.

Mother's Cook Book

My friend, have you heard of the town that lies
On the banks of the river Slow?
You have only to fold your hands and glide
Down the slope of weak-will's slippery side,
And quickly there you'll go.

The town is old as the human race,
And it grows with the flight of years;
It is wrapped in the fog of idler's dreams,
Its streets are paved with discarded schemes
And sprinkled with useless tears.

FOREIGN FOODS

HOW often the housewife wishes for something different to serve her family. Something not beyond the means and not too difficult to prepare. Perhaps the following dishes may satisfy some one's need:

Armenian Cabbage.

Chop one small onion and cook slowly in two tablespoonfuls of bacon fat until yellowed. Add one-half cupful of washed rice and stir until it is coated with fat. Now add one-half pound of chopped steak, two cupfuls of strained tomatoes, six cabbage leaves. Brown the meat before adding the vegetables. Remove the cabbage leaves after boiling a few minutes. Divide the portion of meat into six parts and roll loosely in the cabbage leaves. Place in a baking dish, cover with the strained tomatoes and broth from the pan and bake 45 minutes.

Tomato Egg Plant.

Peel and slice egg plant. Boil in salted water until tender. Drain and brush with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil under the gas flame until brown on each side. Cut thick slices from firm tomatoes, sprinkle with salt and pepper and lightly with grated cheese. Broil on each side until brown. Place a slice of tomato on each slice of egg plant and serve.

Plum Knoedel.

Boil and mash two potatoes; when cold mix with the yolk of an egg, salt to season and flour to make a dough soft enough to hold the impress of the finger. Roll and cut into three-inch squares. In each, place a blue plum or a prune with stone removed, fill with cinnamon and sugar. Fold each and roll into a round dumpling. Cook in boiling water for eight minutes. Place in a buttered baking pan, dust with powdered sugar and brown quickly. Serve at once.

How It Started
By JEAN NEWTON

"BOSTON COMMON"

A PARK which is famous the country and the world over is Boston Common. No visitor to New England, no traveler passing through the city which once held a "tea party" whose echo has reverberated through the pages of history, would fail to visit the "Common." And it is because of these historic associations that "Boston Common" has a significance and an importance beyond that of a mere park or playground.

The "Common" dates back to colonial times, antedating by over a hundred years the famous tea party, which is another boast of the city of the Puritan tradition and the bread "A." It had its origin in 1634 when the ground which comprises it was set aside for a training field and "common ground" for public use. It is from the words "common ground" in the original decree that Boston Common takes its name.

Slight Damage Reported Here

Kingston Among Few Communities to Escape Damaging Effect of Storm Which Swept Entire Country.

Kingston apparently has been among the few communities to escape the damaging effect of the recent sleet storm which covered a great section of the country and did damage estimated at many dollars. Although the city received its share of the rain and streets and walks were slippery with ice, the coating on trees and wires was not so heavy as to cause serious damage. The telephone and electric light companies had their share of trouble but this section escaped the severe damage suffered in many other sections.

The storm which coated walks and streets with a coating of ice for the past couple of days involved practically the whole country. Snow was recorded at Pensacola, Florida, and other points in the extreme south while the west and north suffered from sub-zero temperature and severe blizzards.

Thursday night with the coming of dusk the temperature began to go up and where sleet and ice had covered the streets and walks in the early evening the increase in temperature removed the ice and by early morning today the streets and walks were again safe for travel.

Gifts that go straight to DAD'S HEART

Dad, you know, is a much neglected person.

He likes remembrances as well as anyone . . . but how infrequently he gets them!

Oh, yes . . . we know . . . ties, handkerchiefs, cigars and so on . . . but those are things that (if you'll take a man's word for it) he'd rather choose himself.

And then, take it Dad's word in behalf of other Dads, you mightn't suspect it over . . . but under Dad's gruff, rough granite exterior (which is all a manly bluff) there's a world of sentiment.

He'd love an unexpected gift . . . something that lasts . . . something that he could treasure and cherish along with a memory of the love that prompted it.

The store is rich in just such things from ELGIN Watches to the newest of cigar lighters . . . at all prices. Won't you come in, and let us help you read Dad's mind?
